

DEFENSE CHIEFS
GIVE GRIM VIEW OF SOVIET UNION'S GROWING MIGHTRadford, Army, Navy, Air Leaders Acknowledge U.S. Needs — Testimony Released
by House Committee.By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R.
PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.WASHINGTON, March 30—Testimony of the nation's top defense authorities before the House Appropriations Committee, just released, paints a grim picture of the growing industrial and military might of the Soviet Union.The tough thing to overcome, said Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, "is the unlimited arms race to destruction, where you have enough military power on both sides to practically wipe out the world.""I would not forecast that, the danger of actual war having importantly changed, you might say the needs of maintaining relatively strong forces have somewhat increased," Wilson said. "I would not draw the quick conclusion that the danger was greater. Neither would I say that it had importantly changed."U.S. More Vulnerable.
Asked if the United States was not subject to greater damage than it was last year or the year before, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, replied:
"Since they build up their strength in certain types of weapons each year, I think you probably could say that was correct."There was very little optimism in any of the testimony.
Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, said that if economic considerations did not prevent, he considered that the Army should be 500,000 men larger than it is today to meet current United States commitments.Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, former Army chief of staff, testified that he considered a strength of 1,300,000 the minimum that should be maintained under present conditions.The Soviet naval threat, according to Adm. Arleigh B.
Burke, "is serious today." The Russians are building 75 submarines a year, he declared, and now have seven times as many as the Germans at the outset of World War II. Soviet submarines and a substantial force of cruisers built since the war make the Soviet Navy the second largest in the world today, Burke said.Air Force and Missiles.
The Soviet air force "has long since passed us in quantity" and is making "remarkable strides in quality," Gen.
Vernon F. Twining, chief of staff of the Air Force, said.In the field of guided missiles, Trevor Gardner, who recently resigned as Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for research and development, was quoted from a report made to the Secretary of the Air Force May 5, 1955. It was signed by him, Twining, Gen. James Doolittle and a number of other military and civilian officials. It read: "During the time we have had responsibility for the Air Force research and development program, it is my strong impression that the Russians have narrowed a long way toward closing the qualitative gap between us.""Our intelligence predictions about their missile capacity are alarming," he added.The testimony was taken in support of the Defense Department appropriations for fiscal year 1957. It provides for new

POSTED WARNINGPEORIA, Ill., March 30 (AP)— Motorists may have been pleased with the job done by Jon Babor, Bradley University junior, but police said it added up to disorderly conduct.Babor, 20-year-old junior, noticed that two policemen were posted on Bradley avenue yesterday with a radar apparatus to catch speedsters.He set up shop a block away, unseen by the police, with a three foot square sign reading:
"RADAR AHEAD. This word to motorists was sufficient. The policemen didn't make a single arrest for speeding, so they decided to circle the block.That's when they discovered Babor. He took flight on foot, and the police pursued on foot.
Babor, said it was a "bum rap." "He was just performing a public service," they said.HARVARD SINGERS, ONE NEGRO, CANCEL
FLORIDA CONCERTTALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 30 (AP)—Florida State University said yesterday the scheduled appearance of the Harvard Glee Club at the college had been canceled because of complications over a Negro singer.
A university spokesman said the cancellation was made by mutual consent because F.S.U. was unable to meet Harvard's requirement that the Negro be afforded all the privileges of white singers, including attendance at a reception.The spokesman explained that "customs and traditions" in this state required segregation practices in social affairs at state universities. The reception was to have been held at a sorority house.At Cambridge, Mass., David A. Kuhn, a Harvard junior who serves as historian (secretary) for the glee club, gave a different version.He said financial reasons, not the presence of a Negro in the group, caused the cancellation.

OF JUSTICE DEPT.
TAX TRIAL PLANSPreparations Outlined to Body by Newcomb
Who Ignores Stalling Charges.The federal grand jury, which has complained that the Government is stalling the tax-scandal investigation, was informed by a Justice Department representative yesterday of preparations being made for trial of three men indicted as a result of the inquiry, the Post-Dispatch learned today.Wyllis Newcomb, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, went before the jury to explain advance work for the May 7 trial of Matthew J. Connelly, T. Lamar Caudle and Harry I. Schwimmer, all charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government.The Government contends that publicity attendant upon the grand jury's continuation of the tax-scandal investigation at this time might be used by the defense as a basis for motions to delay the trial or shift it elsewhere.Newcomb, it was understood, refused to make any comment on the grand jury's interim report, submitted Tuesday to United States District Judge George H. Moore, in which the jury made an unprecedented complaint against the Justice Department's failure to push the inquiry.The matter had been referred by Judge Moore to Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr.
However, contrary to a published report, there was no demand by the jury for a show down next Tuesday on whether the inquiry will be continued full-scale into reported scandals in the Truman Administration.Originally scheduled to recess after yesterday's session, the jury went to a partial victory when Government attorneys agreed to having sessions next Tuesday and Wednesday.Only indictments returned so far in the tax scandal inquiry have been against Connelly, former appointments secretary to President Truman; Caudle, former head of the Justice Department's tax division; and Schwimmer, attorney for an income-tax evader who avoided going to prison.Three police officers were indicted by a previous grand jury on charges of accepting bribes from brothel operators. They are Detective Capt. William Greenspan, Lt. Lyman Davis and Patrolman George R.
Woods. Petitions to quash the indictments have been filed in their behalf.PRIMARY RIVAL CLAIMS REWARD
FROM CANDIDATECHICAGO, March 30 (UP)— Morris B. Sachs, a business man seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, recently learned a letter had been sent out, promising that Democrats who back him against Herbert C. Paschen in the April 10 primary would "be the first in being rewarded with patronage in 1957."Sachs, who is running on a "good government" platform, charged that the letter was a fake. He suggested that it was circulated by Paschen backers and offered a $1000 reward for the name of the sender.Paschen promptly claimed the reward. He said the letter was sent out by Sachs's Springfield headquarters.Sachs said he was hasty checking and admitted that Paschen was right. He said the letter had been mailed without his knowledge by his downstate manager, William G. Lyons. He repudiated it.Paschen will get the $1000
"if he is entitled to it," Sachs said. He indicated that he still has not got used to the intricacies of politics as practiced in Chicago and Illinois.POLICE OFFICIALS

OFFICERS NAMED
IN PAY-OFF CASEThose Mentioned by Witnesses But Not Indicted to Beques-tioned for Possible Board Action.Police officers whose names have been mentioned by witnesses in the police pay-off investigation, but who were not indicted, will be interviewed by police officials, I. A. Long, president of the Police Board, said today.Thus far, these officers have not been questioned by police authorities in the protracted inquiry into alleged pay-offs to some policemen by brothel operators. Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd had requested that these men not be interviewed, pending completion of his inquiry.The February term circuit court grand jury in its final report, returned yesterday to Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh, recommended that Dowd's office turn over any information it has to the Police Commissioners "for whatever action they deem warranted."Long said the Police Board intends to get all available information which Dowd can turn over to it. Actual testimony before the grand jury cannot be given to the board, but testimony taken from witnesses in Dowd's office can be turned over, it was explained.

Maj. Thompson to Act.

This information will be given to Maj. James Thompson, acting police inspector, for study. He will interview policemen whose names were listed in the inquiry, but who were not indicted. Thompson then will make a report to Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell and this report will be studied by the board, Long said.The board will make a disposition of the case and immediately lobby on "both sides" of the natural gas bill.Meanwhile, an unexpected delay developed in plans for gation of a $2500 campaign a meeting in his office that the report would not be ready before next Thursday or Friday.He said "no disagreement" among the members was responsible for the postponement.

"It's just a question of how to formulate the report," he said.Senator Edward J. Thye (Rep., Minnesota), another committee member, said also that there was no disagreement. He said an effort was going to be made to sharpen the report, and to pinpoint responsibility more clearly.George said yesterday that tion rejected by Case was of-$61,464 has been collected from the city's parking meters this after the parking meter section made its final tabulation for March.The previous record of $57,- 802 was set last September.

Officials were unable to explain the high receipts except to suggest that business must have been exceptionally active meters.The March collection, after deduction of operating expenses of $1708, brought the parking meter fund to $61,426, which is available for the acquisition were first installed in June, 1951, include $833,000 to pay for the meters themselves; $418,- (AP)—Two Senators have given the special Senate Lobby Insaid today may "merit the committee's attention."McClellan told reporters "it is nothing outstanding," but he did not describe its nature or identify the Senators who had submitted it.The Senators responded to McClellan's request for any information that would help the committee in its search for any improper or illegal attempts to influence Senators or other Government officials through lobbying, campaign contributions or other activities.McClellan announced late yes-approved the appointment as its chief counsel of George Morris Fay, former United States Attorney for the District of Columbia. This was the first staff appointment made by the committee.Fay, born in Pittston, Pa., is a 46-year-old Democrat. He was a Justice Department lawyer for about 10 years before serving as United States Attorney here from 1946 to 1951.

He now is in private law practice here.McClellan said that Fay would start work immediately but that he had "no idea" when the committee would be able to begin its public hearings. He said "a lot of work" would have to be done first.The committee announced previously that it would begin its inquiry with an investigation of lobbying on "both sides"
of the natural gas bill.Meanwhile, an unexpected

Well-informed sources said today that 12 Mysteres, French jet interceptor plane, are on their way to Israel. One source reported some of them had already passed through Rome.Officials refused comment on the reports. French and American policy has been to keep the whole matter as quiet as possible, since the Big Three Western powers are trying to curtail shipment of arms to the Middle East.The French say the Mysteres, like a shipment of American

The output of the Marcel makes the Mysteres, is bought military aid program and turned over to European allies in the North Atlantic alli-ready been built.Reliable sources said the American authorities had agreed to let the French take the 12 Mysteres from current production to fulfill the contract with Israel.The Israelis have been pressing for delivery of the French been pushing for the purchase

CONGRESS BEGINS 10-DAY HOLIDAY, MANY BIG ISSUES STILL UNSETTLED

Little Major Legislation Passed in Three Months — Members Have Chance for Political Checks.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Congress was off on a 10-day Easter holiday today, with little major legislation to show for three months of sessions this year and much to go when it returns on April 9.

Plenty of potentially explosive election year issues lie ahead, including farm, social security, foreign aid, education, highway, housing and possibly civil rights and tax reduction legislation.

The recess will give Republican members an opportunity to check at home on their generally professed decision to run again assured the G.O.P. of another four years in the White House and a chance to recapture control of Congress.

Democrats, contending that dissatisfaction among farmers gives them a good opportunity for victory, were preparing to make the most of that issue while home.

The current recess is the first and probably will be the last long holiday for Congress members, most of whom are anxious to get home early in the summer for political campaigning. The target date for final adjournment still is July 1, well over a month ahead of the national political conventions.

Much Debate in Senate. Most of the legislation since the session started on Jan. 3 has taken place in the House. The Senate, while in session longer, has spent much of its time on a limited number of subjects.

It spent a month debating a bill to exempt natural gas producers from direct federal controls, only to have the measure vetoed by President Eisenhower.

The Senate took the best part of another month debating the farm bill. It passed a measure which a Senate-House committee is currently rewriting. There have been G.O.P. predictions that it, too, will draw a veto.

The House had acted last year on both farm and natural gas legislation.

Another week of the Senate's time was consumed by discussion of proposed changes in the electoral college system, after which the whole issue was sent back to committee for more study.

The House, meanwhile, passed six annual appropriation bills, one of which has cleared the Senate, and an assortment of miscellaneous measures, some of which still require Senate action.

Two 'Major Bills' Passed. The official congressional calendars list only two "major bills" as having cleared both the Senate and the House this year. One would extend existing corporate and excise tax rates and the other would exempt farm-use vehicles from payment of federal gasoline and oil taxes.

Mr. Eisenhower has not yet acted on the farm measure. He recommended it.

Other measures sent to the President during the year include the upper Colorado River water storage act, a bill to extend the school milk program, several measures providing federal loans and credit to areas hit by disasters, a bill continuing the federal polio vaccination program, and a bill revising the formula for taxation of insurance companies.

Tentatively billed as the first major measure when Congress reconvenes is the controversial farm bill. The basis for it is whether there shall be high rigid price supports for farm products, as favored by most Democrats, or flexible supports as advocated by the Administration. Several other issues are likely to keep the farm fight flaring.

Major Items to Be Faced. Other major measures in the offing — all potential trouble spots — include these:

Foreign aid: The Administration wants almost five billion dollars in new appropriations and authority to make 10-year commitments for some forms of aid. Many Congress members say the amount is too large and object to the long-term authority.

Trade agreements: The Administration wants, and the House Ways and Means Committee has approved, a bill to authorize United States participation in the World Organization for Trade Co-operation. Involved in this is the perennial battle between high tariff and low tariff groups.

Aid to education: The House Rules Committee is sitting on a bill to provide federal financial assistance to public schools. The measure isn't likely to emerge from committee unless there can be an agreement — not now sighted — to prevent it from becoming the vehicle for an anti-segregation fight. Congressional leaders are convinced any bill including a bar on aid to segregated schools would touch off a Senate filibuster.

Highways: A Democratic-backed substitute for a bill passed last year by the Senate to set a long-term federal highway program is being held up in the House Public Works Committee. There is a dispute over crediting half a dozen states with funds they have already spent to build toll roads which are to be part of the interstate highway system.

TRUMAN SHRUGS OFF POSSIBILITY OF DRAFT

'I Have Served My Time,' He Says of Idea He Might Be Candidate.

Former President Harry S. Truman shrugged off today reports that he might be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President this year. He was here briefly en route from Kansas City to New York.

His comment on reports in national political circles that a "draft - Truman" movement might get under way at the forthcoming Democratic convention was:

"There's nothing to it. I have served my time and I don't think I ought to be expected to run again. I have never thought that I, or anybody else, was indispensable. That's the sort of thing that leads to dictatorship."

The former President, accompanied by Mrs. Truman, was on his way to New York to address the annual awards dinner of the Overseas Press Club Tuesday. He said their daughter, Margaret, would meet them in New York and that it was safe to assume they would see their prospective son-in-law, E. Clifton Daniel, New York newspaper man.

Truman turned down a request for comment on the results of the recent Minnesota presidential primary in which Adlai Stevenson was upset by Senator Estes Kefauver.

"No," he said, "I have no comment. I'm trying to keep peace in the Democratic party."

He similarly turned aside a question as to whether he had any preferences among the various candidates for the nomination.

With a grin, he said: "You see me Aug. 13 and I'll tell you." This is the date the Democratic national convention opens in Chicago.

The Democratic State Committee of Missouri this week recommended that Truman be made a delegate to the convention with one full vote. Concerning this development, he said he would prefer not to be a delegate but "I am still a good Democrat and I'll do whatever they want me to do."

With a smile, he added: "They don't have to give me anything to keep me in line."

Truman explained his reluctance to serve as a delegate with the statement that he wanted more freedom to confer and talk with a large number of people at the nominating gathering.

"My objective is to help the Democrats win and if there are any sore spots I want to help heal them," he said.

Retirement benefits and to provide benefits for disabled workers at the age of 50 is under study by the Senate Finance Committee. The Administration opposes those features of the measure, whose fate is uncertain. Democratic leaders are pushing it.

Housing: The Administration seeks authority to build 35,000 new public housing units annually in the next two years. Key Democrats are holding out for 50,000 units annually.

Postal rates: The House Post Office Committee is considering the Administration's request for general rate increases, including a hike of one cent in first-class (letter) mail. Strong opposition has developed.

Taxes: Hopes for general tax reduction are dim, but there still is an outside chance that if the Treasury shows a surplus on June 30, the closing days of the session may bring a tax cut benefiting mainly lower income groups.

Civil rights: The Administration has postponed several times the submission of a detailed program which has been promised. Some House members are pushing a package bill which would contain among other things new guarantees of the right to vote. Senate prospects for any such bill are slim.

MOROCCAN RULER GOING TO SPAIN TO END DOMINATION

Ben Yousseff Expecting Complete Independence Such as Was Agreed To by France.

RABAT, French Morocco, March 30 (AP)—A Moroccan government spokesman says Sultan Mohammed Ben Yousseff is going to Madrid next Wednesday fully expecting to get Spain's approval for the full independence of Morocco.

France already has agreed to the principle of Moroccan independence. Negotiations are being conducted on future links of "interdependence" between the two countries.

Abdullah Ibrahim, Secretary of State for Information, told reporters: "Recognition by Spain and the independence and unity of Morocco would automatically lead to suppression of the interzonal frontier and the disappearance of the Khalfia government. The principle of unity being agreed on, there would be nothing to do except formalize it by legal and political agreements."

In the Spanish zone the Sultan's powers are delegated to a Khalifa, whom he chooses from two candidates presented by the Spanish government. Administration is controlled by a Spanish high commissioner.

Ibrahim said the Sultan expected to get an agreement in line with that reached by France. He said the problem of zones of influence had arisen but he declined to elaborate.

The old Moroccan empire stretching around the northwest coast of Africa has been divided between France and Spain in protectorates. The French area covers approximately 153,870 square miles. The Spanish-controlled territory totals approximately 18,008 square miles. The 222,978 square mile angler area is internationalized.

Spain has said it would grant self-government to its protectorate gradually because the area was not advanced enough for immediate independence, but informed Spanish sources earlier this month declared, "we'll give as much as the French and probably a little more."

In Algeria, the most stormy French North African area, Resident Minister Robert Lacoste said he was seeking more troops to help restore order.

Fighting continued without letup across Algeria. Scattered reports said 71 rebels, eight pro-French Moslems and at least seven French soldiers were killed yesterday. In one action east of Soumman, French fighter planes strafed a band of rebels. Ground troops later found 21 bodies.

In Tunisia, another protectorate recently granted independence with links of interdependence, the top nationalist leader promised further cooperation with France.

MIKOYAN FLIES TO BURMA, HANOI AND PEIPING NEXT

CALCUTTA, India, March 30 (UP)—First Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas Mikoyan flew to Burma today after visiting Pakistan and India.

From Burma he will go to Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam, and then to Peiping, the capital of Communist China.

Sources close to the Russian said the decision by Mikoyan to visit Hanoi and Peiping was politically significant and that he was being sent there as a troubleshooter. He was one of the first top Soviet leaders to denounce Stalin.

BOSSISM CHARGE MAKES HIM MAD, STEVENSON SAYS

Tells Labor Rally He'll Stay in Race Even if He Loses California Primary.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson told a rally of California labor supporters last night: "You know why I'm here—I'm here for votes."

Tossing aside prepared speech notes, Stevenson told the warm, cheering Labor Temple crowd: "If I disappoint you, it will be the most disappointing thing which has ever befallen me. If I succeed, it will be due to your efforts in my behalf."

The rally climaxed a busy two days of California speech-making, handshaking and conferencing, all aimed at reassuring supporters worried over Stevenson's loss of "front runner" position in the Democratic presidential nomination race. He flew back to Chicago today to spend Easter with his son, John F. Stevenson.

Results of his effort are still to be measured. But the enthusiastic evening rally—last of 14 meetings Stevenson had during a long day in Los Angeles and San Francisco—heartened his backers.

A roar of applause greeted Stevenson's speech from the audience of 700 which overflowed the Labor Temple. There were shouts of "You're going to get 'em, Adlai!"

"I'm here to bespeak your help," the candidate continued. "I'm also here because I'm mad."

He declared the cry of "bossism" from the rival Estes Kefauver camp irked him so much he decided on this previously unplanned dash to California to seek votes in the June 5 primary.

The Senator from Tennessee has charged that attempts were made both in Minnesota — where he recently won an upset primary victory over Stevenson — and in California to organize Stevenson support early in the game "in such an overwhelming show of power I would be frozen or frightened out."

Stevenson struck back at this charge at every opportunity and stressed it in television talks both in San Francisco and in Los Angeles. He said it was only after Kefauver tried and failed to get endorsement of some of the party leaders that he began calling them "bosses."

Christian Pilgrims Streaming From Israel to Arab Jerusalem

Jews Barred From Heavily-Guarded Road Open to Christians Only at Christmas and Easter.

By RICHARD DUDMAN A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector, March 30 — Christians are streaming through the Mandelbaum gate from the Israeli to the Jordanian section of Jerusalem on the annual Easter pilgrimage.

The unusual flow of traffic along the guarded road across 100 yards of No Man's Land emphasizes the heavy restriction that Jordan ordinarily maintains on traffic to and from Israel. The "gate" is named for Y. Mandelbaum, a drygoods dealer who used to live beside the road.

Border regions are one of the many results of the uneasy truce between Israel and its encircling Arab neighbors. The frontiers mainly follow the line where fighting stopped after the Palestine war of 1948. They are legalized only by separate 1949 armistice agreements by Israel with Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon which are chronically visited by both sides.

Only at Easter and Christmas may Israel's 43,000 Christians visit the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Garden of Gethsemane, the Mount of Olives and other sacred spots in the old city and return directly to Israel.

Jews are never permitted to visit their holy places in Old Jerusalem, including Wailing Wall in the old city.

An official information booklet published in 1954 by the Jordan state tourist department and printed in Egypt sets forth the restrictions clearly:

"Visitors coming to Jordan via Israel will be allowed entry provided there is no Israeli visa affixed to their passports. After touring the holy places, these visitors must make their return journey either via neighboring Arab countries or direct from Jordan airports."

"Re-entry into Israel from Jordan is not permitted. During Christmas and Easter festivities special permission for a two-way crossing will be granted to tourists in Jordan wishing to visit Israel."

A visitor from Israel to Jordan must present "a certificate of church membership or an official document proving that he is not a member of the Jewish faith." The booklet says flatly:

"Israeli citizens and those who profess the Jewish faith are not permitted entry into Jordan."

ROME IS THROGGED FOR TENEBRAE RITES

Good Friday 'Shadows' Service Commemorates Christ's Death on Cross.

VATICAN CITY, March 30 (AP)—Thousands of pilgrims and Romans thronged St. Peter's Basilica this Good Friday for mournful tenebrae (shadows) services commemorating Christ's death on the cross.

Thousands more attended tenebrae services held in many of Rome's nearly 500 Roman Catholic churches.

Highlight of the tenebrae services—held in most Catholic churches on Holy Thursday, Good Friday and Holy Saturday—was the slow extinguishing of a candle for each of the 14 stations of the cross.

The fifteenth, symbol of Christ, was hidden momentarily to represent his death. A loud noise resounded through the churches, to recall the convulsion of nature at that moment nearly 2000 years ago.

This afternoon, following the Vatican's new decree for Holy Week observances, the mass of the presanctified eucharistic host was to be held in St. Peter's and in most of Rome's churches.

Rome's Good Friday schedule also included a three-hour passion service beginning at noon at St. Paul's American Protestant Church.

Tonight the annual torchlight way of the cross will be held on the Palatine hill, overlooking the Roman Forum and the Colosseum.

Pilgrims continued to pour into Rome by bus, airplane and train. Thousands of them will gather with Romans in St. Peter's square on Sunday to hear Pope Pius XII and receive his blessing.

The Pope appeared in his Vatican apartment window again today to bless several thousand cheering pilgrims gathered below in St. Peter's square. The Pontiff has made such an appearance at noon every day during Holy Week.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 30 (UP)—Vice President Joao Goulart has accepted an invitation to visit the United States and will leave for Washington April 30, it was announced today.

The invitation was extended by United States Vice President Richard M. Nixon during the Brazilian presidential inaugural ceremonies last January.

Goulart said he will tour Europe after a two-week stay in the United States.

MAYOR TO SEEK CANCELLATION OF FARE RISE IF BUS TAX IS NOT PAID

Says Increase Was Granted on Assumption Receipts Levy Would Apply — P.S. Co. to Fight It.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker will seek cancellation of the last fare increase granted Public Service Co. if the company refuses to pay the city's 5 per cent gross receipts tax on its bus operations, he said today. Last year the tax amounted to $731,434.

The company has announced it will file a suit contesting the validity of the tax on the ground it constitutes discrimination against the transit firm in that the tax is not levied against other commercial users of city streets.

Motion to Be Filed.
"In the event the company refuses to pay the tax, I have instructed the city law department to file a motion before the Missouri Public Service Commission asking that it rescind the most recent fare increase granted the company," Mayor Tucker said.

"I believe the increase should be rescinded, in such an event, because it was granted on the assumption the company would pay the tax."
The increase, which became effective last March 4, was estimated to yield the city about $400,000 to $450,000 a year. It had asked for about $955,000. In allowing the increase, the commission took into consideration the company's operating costs, including its taxes, as well as its net valuation for rate-making purposes.

In connection with the latter, the commission announced yesterday its technical staff would make a study of the company's property valuation and depreciation accounting.

The study is expected to require about one year.
Request By City.
The order for the study resulted from a request by the city during hearings on the last fare increase.

City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman, in hearings last January, argued the firm's rate-making valuation included too great a proportion for what he called "obsolescent streetcar operation."

Current valuation of the utility for rate-making now is about $24,000,000, under the commission valuation theory of original cost less depreciation.

BIG-STORE SALES IN DOLLARS RISE 30 PCT. FOR WEEK

St. Louis area department store sales increased 30 per cent in dollar volume last week compared with the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

The increase reflected "both a pickup in Easter buying and the fact that there was very adverse weather during the corresponding 1955 week," the bank said. Easter is a week earlier this year than last.

For the four-week period ended last Saturday, St. Louis area sales increased 14 per cent over those of the corresponding period in 1955. Cumulative sales since Jan. 1 were up 7 per cent in dollar volume over those of the same 1955 period.

Dollar volume of sales rose 25 per cent in the Eighth Federal Reserve District as a whole last week over the similar period a year ago. Sales in the district were 11 per cent higher in the four weeks ending Saturday over a year ago. Department store sales nationally were 9 per cent higher last week than in the corresponding week of 1955.

New Attack on Club Prevue; 10,000 Leaflets From Plane

Anti-gambling leaflets being tossed from plane (upper left) over notorious Club Prevue, Madison county gambling casino located on U.S. Route 40 near East St. Louis.

Dick H. Mudge Jr., Candidate for State's Attorney, Pledges Closing of Place.

The notorious Club Prevue, Madison county gambling casino which recently has suffered reverses at the hands of state police, ministers and the Illinois Liquor Control Commission, was attacked again today, this time from the air.

Dick H. Mudge Jr., former fighter pilot and now anti-machine candidate for the Democratic nomination for State's Attorney of Madison county in the April 10 primary, flew over the club and dropped 10,000 leaflets proclaiming his determination to keep it closed if he is elected.

Riding in a light Cessna 170 plane piloted by Earl Tynor of Champaign, Ill., Mudge, a 36-year-old graduate of Harvard University and the Northwestern University Law School, directed five runs over the target. The leaflets were caught by the wind and scattered for miles around.

The leaflets, signed by Mudge, read: "To the Club Prevue, alias the Mounds Club, alias the Corona Club, or whatever else the racketeers are calling it now."

"The handwriting is on the wall. Your reign of lawlessness is soon to be ended. The good citizens of Madison county are disgusted with you, your political friends, and gambling joints operating in open defiance of our state laws."

"I promise the Club Prevue and the voters of Madison county that if I am nominated and elected State's Attorney, the Club Prevue and all other disreputable and illegal places will be closed."

Club Prevue, which closed more than a week ago, is on

15 NEW REPTILES ARE VIERHELLER'S SURPRISE TO ZOO

Zoo Director George P. Vierheller has a way of surprising zoo employees whenever he goes on a spring buying trip. In the shipment of new specimens Vierheller recently purchased in Florida were 15 reptiles other employees had not been expecting, it was learned yesterday.

As one Zoo employee put it: "We thought we were getting about 60 new arrivals, including reptiles, mammals and birds. But when the crates were opened and a count made, we came out with a total of 78."

So, aside from the rare bushmaster, the zoo now owns one extra coral snake, a few common garter snakes, some black racers and a ribbon snake or two. Said the employee: "Just how all this came about is a question Mr. Vierheller will have to answer when he returns later today."

ARMED MAN FORCES PAIR TO LIE DOWN, ROBS STORE

An undetermined amount of narcotics and money was obtained last night in a holdup of a drug store at 6955 Gravois avenue operated by Jacob F. Miller.

Miller told police he and his wife were in the store when a man entered and announced a holdup. Drawing a pistol, the man forced the pair into the rear, where he made them lie on the floor. The drugs and part of the money came from a safe. The rest of the money was taken from two cash registers.

In another holdup, Cutter's Liquor Store, 2000 Carr street, was robbed of $40 by an armed man.

BROWN SHOE CO. INCREASES FALL PRICES ON TWO LINES

Brown Shoe Co. today announced increases in fall prices on children's and men's lines, with some shoes priced to retail at 50 cents higher in the children's lines and $1 higher in men's lines.

Many shoes in all lines remain unchanged, the company announced. The increases will average about 4 per cent at wholesale cost.

No announcement of price increases has been made by International Shoe Co., although company president Henry H. Rand said last month that increases were "almost mandatory."

SEEKS BARRACKS HOUSING INQUIRY BY GRAND JURY

Garnholz Wants to Know Whether Fire Hazards Make Quarters Too Hazardous.

A grand jury investigation of fire hazards at the Jefferson Barracks housing project will be recommended by Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz of St. Louis county to determine "whether or not these buildings are so untenable that they should be vacated immediately," Garnholz said today.

His statement followed disclosure of several hazards following a check by the Missouri Inspection Bureau. Earlier this month the grand jury criticized the temporary buildings as "hazardous to life and health."

"If hazardous conditions are disclosed that can be corrected, such action should be taken at once so that the buildings can continue to be occupied while plans are going ahead for the 600 proposed new public housing units," Garnholz said. The barracks project has about 950 family units.

Robert J. Tracy, executive director of the St. Louis County Housing Authority, said he would recommend immediate steps to correct the hazards at the authority's next meeting Monday.

Major recommendations by the inspection bureau, an agency of fire insurance underwriters, were that 1000-gallon propane gas storage tanks should be at least 25 feet from buildings and on masonry foundations rather than wood as at present, and that 15,000-to-18,000-gallon bulk storage tanks near the project also should have masonry foundations and should be grounded against lightning.

W. C. Anderson, inspection bureau manager, said the bureau report was based only on a spot check of "a few installations" and that a complete survey was needed since "there may be other hazards."

Anderson said he had no comment on the seriousness of conditions found, pointing out the check had not been detailed enough to arrive at a conclusion.

Other recommendations in the report were that power lines near the bulk tanks and wiring near a compressor station should be checked and that safety release valves of the 1000-gallon tanks should be checked periodically. There was no showing that the valves were not being checked routinely.

Funds Set Aside for Preparing Plans for Two Primary Schools

Eight-Room Units on Near North and South Sides Will Be Fourth and Fifth on 1955 Bond Issue.

Funds for preparation of start on seven of the 10 primary schools. The money originally was earmarked for a 24-room school to serve the M-6 housing project, which now will receive another allocation later on.

Board action was deferred until next Tuesday on a proposal authorizing Building Commissioner V. Harry Rhodes to solicit bids for contracts totaling $352,580 for repair and improvement work during the 1956-57 fiscal year. Board members asked for a detailed breakdown of the proposed work.

Only for Known Work.
Rhodes also said that $167,645 would be required during the fiscal year for maintenance work performed by board employees. Later, he said this was the total only for work presently known to be necessary. Maintenance work that actually will be required will be much greater, he said.

Relieve Overcrowding.
Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey said its construction would relieve overcrowding of pupils in the Humboldt, Sigel, Charless and Fremont schools.

The school on the near north side will be in the general area bounded by North Twentieth, Howard, Madison and North Twenty-third streets, he said, and will cost about $139,000. He explained its cost would be lower than the other because the site under consideration would permit more economical construction.

Hickey said the north side school would reduce the "excessive" pupil-teacher ratio at the Blair and Howard schools. Some rooms at Blair, he said, have as many as 47 pupils. The recommended maximum number of pupils per room is 32 and the city-wide average now is 36.

Sites to Be Announced.
Specific sites of the two proposed new schools will be announced later. The board authorized expenditure of $4500 for each project, to cover the cost of plans and specifications.

Last December, the board voted planning funds for the first three eight-room primary schools, of which two will be built in west St. Louis and one in the north.

The board's action yesterday followed the announcement Wednesday that $1,275,000 in bond issue funds would be allocated to permit a quicker

RICHMOND HTS. GAVE BUSINESS TO CITY OFFICIAL

Treasurer Says Firm Sold Traffic Markers to Suburb but 'Didn't Make a Cent.'

Peter A. Rafferty, city treasurer of Richmond Heights, said today that a traffic marker firm he owns sold its products to Richmond Heights. A Missouri law, section 78.410 of the revised 1949 statutes, states that a municipal official doing business with his city is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Rafferty, a retired clay mine owner living at 20 Lake Forest, said his firm sold the items at cost and "didn't make a cent out of business with Richmond Heights."

Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz of St. Louis county said his office would make a thorough investigation to determine whether there has been a violation of state statutes. "If the evidence warrants it," he added, "the matter will be placed before the grand jury."

Records available at the Richmond Heights City Hall show that Parco Supplies, Rafferty's firm, received $3222 from the city for markers, between October 1953 and November 1955. Rafferty said his nephew, Lawrence L. Dolan, handles small municipal accounts for the marker firm and sold markers to Richmond Heights. Offices of the company, at 7031 Manchester avenue, are in St. Louis.

A warehouse formerly was in Richmond Heights, convenient to the needs of that community, Rafferty said.

Mayor Lee M. Duggan, who is opposed to re-election, said he was unaware the law applied to appointed officials, such as the city treasurer, who is appointed by the council. Duggan said he would instruct the city attorney to study the statute.

"If there is anything improper in Parco Supplies dealing with the city, the transactions will cease," Mayor Duggan promised.

Duggan added that Parco was low bidder on the markers it supplied, adding it was his understanding the firm sold many items to Richmond Heights at cost.

by treaty, undertakes to defend it.

The resolution said the cold-war situation has changed since the 1951 treaty was signed to station NATO forces here. Informed sources in Washington feel there is a danger reason for the stand. They say economic unrest may be the underlying factor.

Many Icelanders blame the United States for the decline in the country's fishing industry. Fish once accounted for 95 per cent of Iceland's exports. United States purchases, which formerly made up more than 25 per cent of the total, have dropped steadily.

Moscow Make Charges. Moscow radio took quick advantage of the issue. It accused American soldiers of tampering with Icelandic elections and forecast that there might be a widening rift in NATO.

Under its 1951 agreement with Iceland, the United States has spent about $150,000,000 in building and maintaining the island's defenses. These include an airfield at Keflavik and three radar stations operated by the United States.

In Washington, military officials said that loss of the base would be catastrophic for NATO countries. They emphasized, however, the island's importance as a "natural link" in the early-warning network the United States and Canada are jointly extending seaward from both coasts.

obligational authority of $33-627,000,000 to maintain an overall strength of between 2,840,000 and 3,006,000 men.

Of this strength the Army will have about 1,034,000, the Navy and Marine Corps 868,938.

and the Air Force 936,000 men.

Services' Planned Strength. The Army plans to maintain 19 divisions, of which six will be non-effective, and 143 anti-aircraft battalions, the Navy 1103 ships, including 411 warships, 17 carrier air groups and 31 carrier anti-submarine squadrons. The Marine Corps retains its three divisions supported by three aircraft wings. The Air Force will attain its planned strength of 137 wings during the year.

The committee took the unusual step of making public the unclassified testimony of the principal military and civilian officials of the Defense Department before completion of the hearings. It also made public testimony by Ridgway and Gardner, although neither was any longer in an official capacity at the time he testified.

All were questioned by the committee quite extensively as to the degree of danger and none was willing to say that it had lessened.

Radford said: "We are subject to the possibility of grave peril at this time. The problem we face today has no precedent in our history. We are up against a threat that may last for an indefinite period of years."

With regard to nuclear deterrence of war, Wilson declared: "Within a reasonable number of years we are almost bound to get into a condition sometimes described as 'atomic plenty' or a condition where the two parties could, as a practical matter, destroy each other."

"The peril if it is peril," Radford added, "is mounting mutually."

What will be the result? According to Radford: "The changes are that it might well become a period of uneasy stalemate so far as global war is concerned. The great threats to the security of the United States are not solely in the military line but the economic, political and others as well."

Believe U.S. Is Ahead. Wilson and Radford both believe we are ahead at the present time. When asked if we could keep our lead, Wilson said: "Our margin of superiority is probably not as great or may not be as great five or 10 years from now as it is today. We can still keep ahead, or keep some margin, especially if we can hold our more productive allies in the proper association."

Radford testified in regard to the long-range ballistic missile program "that in the request for funds in the bill that is before the committee that problem has been taken care of and all the money that can be spent in the time that is covered by this bill is in the request."

In this he was backed by Secretary of the Air Force Donald A. Quarles. Air Force Chief of Staff Twining and Trevor Gardner admitted, however, that perhaps the Russians had recognized earlier than we the extreme importance of this field of activity.

Army Chief of Staff Taylor was questioned in detail about the nature of future war. He said: "I would rate the probability of the (general) nuclear war occurring below the outbreak of small wars, which could lead into the big war."

Pictures Difficulties. There is definitely a question mark surrounding our ability to mobilize and to deploy under conditions of general nuclear war, he declared.

"Our ports might suffer nuclear damage, and our shipping from submarines in the sea lanes. . . . I would say there is definite possibility of some limitation to mobilize and deploy overseas being placed on us, but I would also say it is not so definite that it would justify, in my opinion, making no provision for our being able to reinforce troops overseas."

In respect of whether we can fight either a nuclear or non-nuclear war with our military forces, Twining said: "At the present time—and I emphasize the present, because the situation is changing rapidly—we are retaining a conventional capability within the army. At the same time we are moving forward in the new field. How to balance these forces is something we are going to have to watch very carefully, year by year. I do not know where we will be say five years from now."

Taylor expressed his dissatisfaction with the airlift the Air Force is providing for the Army. "The troop carrier support of the Air Force," he said, "is not as ample as I would like." It was brought out that the capability was less than required to move one division and lack of airlift would limit the Army's ability to get there fast to put out "brush-fire" wars.

'Measured Retaliation.' Taylor testified: "I do not think of the army as a part of massive retaliation, but rather more of measured retaliation. I feel that is one of the most desirable characteristics of the army. We can proportion our application of force from weapons of atomic power down to the pistol."

He added: "It means indiscriminate destruction of the civilian population, is repugnant to any military man."

With regard to Soviet naval power, the navy presentation declared: "As a world naval power the Soviet fleet ranks second only to the United States. Her submarine fleet continues to grow at an alarming rate; she has 400 submarines. In her auxiliary program she has a number of small submarine tenders which implies mobility and advanced bases. She has a growing surface navy of 27 cruisers and 175 destroyers."

Although the Soviet navy has no aircraft carriers, "it does have a naval air arm of more than 3,000 planes, based on land."

Twining Jolts Committee. Twining's testimony provided the greatest shock to the committee. "In the Soviet combat units are now some 20,000 combat aircraft," he said. "This compares to thousands less in the United States Air Force."

"Our counter to this quantity of force," he continued, "has been quality—better airplanes, better weapons, better airmen. However, the Soviets are now closing the quality gap. This concerns us much more than comparisons of numbers."

"The Soviet air force has more Bisons than we have B-52s right now and they can maintain this advantage for some time—if they keep on the production curve we are now predicting."

"They have thousands more light jet bombers, the Beagle, than we have B-57s. They have thousands more new jet fighters than we have. We have many more all-weather fighters than they have. Flashlights—their newest all-weather fighter, but our estimates show they could close this gap and outnumber us in two or three years."

"To sum up," Twining said, "they either have overtaken us, or can overtake us, in all categories of warplanes except the medium jet bomber."

"I cannot deny," Twining said, "that the Soviets are narrowing our margin of superiority. They have long since passed us in quantity and are making remarkable strides in quality."

"The Soviets are attempting to close this gap by greatly increasing their research and development efforts," Twining continued. "This is our real concern. It is apparent that they are putting more men and money into this battle of the laboratories than we are."

Quarles was asked about the situation of the United States with regard to vulnerability to Soviet attack. In spite of a substantial improvement in our warning and air defense system, he said a "net evaluation would say that we lose ground rather than gain ground as far as the vulnerability is concerned when the Russians have converted to a heavy jet bomber."

Gardner testified his resignation was brought about because "I could not in good conscience participate in a program which had a reasonable chance, in my opinion, of losing the technological race with the Russians."

He said that he had requested $178,000,000 in additional money for research and development for the Air Force for the current fiscal year and $316,000,000 more for the 1957 fiscal year.

"This was not needed for the ballistic missile program, which Gardner agreed was adequately financed, but for research on new aircraft, for nuclear propulsion for aircraft, for nuclear aircraft, for suggestions in the Kilian report on air defense and to exploit technological break-throughs in existing research. As it is now, important projects have been pushed aside to provide the funds for the accelerated ballistic missile program."

Gardner declared also that because of funds limitations "we embarked upon a very cautious program" of procuring the new high performance fighters of the 100 series, the McDonnell 101, the 104 and the 105.

In Gardner's opinion: "If we were buying the right kind of air power we would be spending about $200,000,000 annually on it."

FOUR SOUGHT AFTER RACE IN STOLEN AUTOS CAUGHT

Four youths in two stolen automobiles who eluded police last Monday night after the officers sought to break up a race between the two cars in the 3600 block of Connecticut street were under arrest today and have admitted the theft of nine other automobiles, police said.

The youths, three of them 16 years old and the fourth 17, said they stole the automobiles and then raced them on St. Louis county roads. "To see how fast they would go," both cars used in the race on Connecticut were stolen by the same 16-year-old. One of these cars was wrecked but the two occupants escaped on foot as police fired a warning shot in the air.

Patrolman William Ellingham and Lawrence Land of the Magnolia District made the arrests after a quiet check of the neighborhood led to discovery of the identities of the offenders.

EX-TEACHER SIGNS
$7500 CONTRACT
AS CIRCUS CLOWN

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—A former high school teacher with two college degrees has signed a contract for a season as a professional clown with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Bachelor William Britten signed yesterday at Madison Square Garden with well-presented fanfare, a red rose stem for a pen and the screaming of six chimpanzees for musical accompaniment.

Britten, who starts his new job when the circus opens at the garden next Wednesday, expects to get $7,500 for the season ending in November. He entered an audition the circus held last month for would-be clowns and was accepted.

He started in the amateur clown field in 1950 while teaching English at Ballard High School in Seattle. He wore a tramp costume to help an oil company entertain children at the opening of a new gasoline station.

Britten was graduated from Temple University, Philadelphia, with a bachelor of arts degree and got a master of arts degree from the University of Washington. He has been studying for a doctor's degree at New York University.

9 FREED OF RIOT CHARGES IN WESTINGHOUSE STRIKE

MEDIA, Pa., March 30 (AP)—Nine members of a union striking the Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant in Lester were found not guilty last night of riot charges stemming from a picket-line incident last December.

The finding by a Delaware county court jury paved the way for a resumption of negotiations to end the last strike in the vast Westinghouse system.

Among the nine freed by Judge John V. Diggs after the jury returned its verdict were six members of the negotiating committee for Local 107 of the United Electrical Workers independent.

The nine went on trial Monday. They were accused of attacking a truck driver who tried to enter the Lester plant. The jury deliberated six hours.

MARIAN COSTA, RETIRED GROCER, DIES AT EUREKA

Marian Costa, former president of the Costa Grocery Co., died yesterday of a coronary occlusion at St. Joseph's Hill Infirmary, Eureka. He was 73 years old and had been retired for seven years.

Mr. Costa was born in Palermo, Italy, and came to St. Louis as young man. He was a partner in the old Seales grocery firm, which specialized in importing olive oil and Italian foods, and later founded Costa Grocery, Inc., his own food importing firm.

Surviving are a son, Anthony Costa, and a daughter, Miss Leona Costa, both of 9364 Sonora drive, Brentwood, and another daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Vitale, 7276 Ravinia drive, Pasadena Hills. Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. Monday at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church, 2901 Locust street. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

TWO MORE ORGANIZATIONS
INDORSE SCHOOL TAX RISE

The Metropolitan Church Federation and the executive committee of the St. Louis Junior Chamber of Commerce have endorsed the proposed St. Louis school tax rate of $1.20 on each $100 of assessed property valuation. It was announced today.

The church group pointed out that the proposed rate, which is 15 cents higher than the present $1.15 levy, will permit reduction of the class load on teachers and allow a $200 salary rise for each instructor.

James J. Eagan, president of the junior chamber, said "If we fail to properly provide for the education of our young people, then we have failed ourselves and our community." The proposed tax rate will be submitted to city voters at a special election on April 12.

FIRE DESTROYS FLAT RIVER
SHOE PLANT; LOSS $500,000

FLAT RIVER, Mo., March 30—Fire destroyed the Suburban Shoe Co. factory here after raging out of control for three hours early today. Damage was estimated at $500,000.

Donald Caplan, vice president and manager, said the one-story brick building, which had been remodeled six months ago, was completely leveled. Harry Alberstein, 7 Ladue Forest, Ladue, is president of the firm.

The fire, which was believed to have started in the boiler room, was discovered about 11 o'clock last night. By the time the Flat River Volunteer Fire Department arrived the building was ablaze and the fire out of control. No one was hurt.

REDS WOULD PAY $2850 FOR THEIR SEIZED PROPERTY

Party and Daily Worker Makes Offer to Tax Agents Who Padlocked Offices.

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—The Communist party and the Daily Worker have offered $2850 in cash in a bid to recover their property—mostly battered office equipment—seized by the Government on income tax liens.

Donald R. Moysey, New York district director of internal revenue, declined the proffered funds for the moment at least. He said his inventory of the seized property was not complete. However, he invited and accepted a formal submission of the proposed financial arrangement by attorneys for the party and its newspaper, the lawyers said.

Moysey conferred yesterday with John J. Abt, attorney for the Communist party, and Harry Sacher, attorney for the Daily Worker. The lawyers offered to leave a deposit of $2850 with Moysey against the value of the seized property.

$350 for Party's Share.
Abt said he had $350 which he believed would cover the value of the party's equipment in the padlocked offices. Sacher said he had $250 which he estimated would cover the value of the seized property of the Daily Worker.

Sacher and Abt said the money had been lent by individuals whom they did not identify. The lawyers proposed to pay the money to Moysey for release of the seized property and to sell the property simultaneously to the individuals who advanced the loans.

Sacher and Abt said the sale would be an essential part of the arrangement, because if the party and the newspaper resumed ownership the Government would be in a position to seize the properties and place new liens on them.

Deny Money Is Owed.
The lawyers proposed that the Government apply the money against the tax liens or—if adjudication showed no taxes were owed—return the money. Communist spokesmen have denied any income tax money is owed.

Revenue agents seized the offices of the party and Daily Worker on Tuesday. The income tax lien on the party is $389,265 and that on the Daily Worker is $46,409.

Despite padlocks on its editorial and business offices, the Daily Worker has continued publication in a printing office in the state building which it has used for some time.

It has been printing extra copies since the seizures on the basis of the publicity accompanying the Government's action. The press run for today's edition was about 4000 above the usual 8000 or 9000. The newspaper said it planned to run off 32,000 copies of the weekend edition instead of the usual 23,000.

Senator Williams Praises Red Property Seizure

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Senator John J. Williams (Rep.), Delaware, who has found much to criticize in the Internal Revenue Service, has nothing but praise for the revenue official who put padlocks on Communist party offices.

Williams paid tribute in a Senate speech yesterday to Donald R. Moysey, revenue director for the lower Manhattan area.

"Several years ago," Williams said, "it was discovered that through strict interpretation and drastic enforcement of our Federal income tax laws, we could pick up our prominent racketeers."

"The Communist party and its membership certainly fall in this category."

"Their refusal to disclose their records to the Internal Revenue agents renders them liable for the assessment, and Mr. Moysey is to be commended by every American citizen for calling their bluff."

"Failure to have collected this tax liability would have meant that every American taxpayer would to that extent be making his contribution to the Communist party."

FRANCE PROTESTS AGAINST A R A B S' STAND ON ALGERIA

PARIS, March 30 (UP)—Foreign Minister Christian Pineau summoned the Syrian and Lebanese ambassadors today to protest against the Arab League's support of the Algerian rebellion.

Informed sources said Pineau also was considering postponing his scheduled visit to the Middle East early next month. A Cairo dispatch yesterday reported the council of the nine-nation Arab League denounced the French crackdown on nationalists in Algeria.

The ambassadors of the Arab League nations adopted a resolution pledging "all our support to the Arabs of Algeria and sincerely sharing their calamity in the present aggressive and destructive war."

France holds Algeria as a legal part of metropolitan France and has previously condemned Arab states for interfering in French "internal" affairs. French resentment against the Arab action flared early today when a hand grenade exploded on the window ledge of the Egyptian embassy. It did little damage and caused no casualties.

$1,500,000 Spent by the Burlington — First Improvement in Conduit Industrial Area.

A $1,500,000 warehouse is being built at the foot of East Prairie avenue by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.
This will be the first improvement in the Conduit industrial area being developed along the Mississippi riverfront in north St. Louis.

The warehouse, a one-story building with 150,000 square feet of floor space, will be operated by Hunt Foods, Inc., of Fullerton, Calif., under a long-term lease. Carloads of canned foods shipped from the West Coast will be unloaded here for redistribution by rail and truck.
Foundations of the building are now being laid. The Burlington has put in a spur track which will accommodate 10 or 12 freight cars on the eastern side of the warehouse. Docks for loading trucks will be on the west side.

The warehouse will have a 28-foot ceiling to permit stacking of cartons, and the reinforced floor will be designed to support 800 pounds a square foot, four times the capacity of an ordinary building.

Hunt Foods has processing plants in eight states and markets an extensive line of products. Its sales exceed $60,000, 000 a year.

The Conduit Industrial Redevelopment Corp. of St. Louis was organized in February 1955 to develop large industrial tracts by filling in land that has been subject to flooding.

The city, which urgently needs room for expansion of industry, is co-operating, and the Board of Aldermen has passed an ordinance declaring that the area bounded by East Grand and Taylor avenues, Hall street, East Third street and the Burlington tracks is blighted.
The redevelopment corporation plans to develop about 300 acres, and about one-fourth of this area already has been reclaimed by filling and grading.
The St. Louis flood control plan drafted by the Army Corps of Engineers and now awaiting congressional authorization of funds calls for levees and other works to afford protection against a 52-foot flood stage.
Although the Conduit area is in the stretch to be protected under this plan, the developers are not waiting for construction of levees by the Government. Instead, they are going ahead immediately on their own.

"Our land will be filled in and raised to a level at least two feet higher than the proposed levees," said William C.
Bernard, engineer who joined G. J. and John J. Nooney, brothers, in organizing the redevelopment firm.

The tract on which Burlington is erecting the warehouse is elevated and required no filling. Conduit, which turned the ground over to the railroad in exchange for other acreage, graded the warehouse site and used the dirt to fill in low-lying land.

U.S. BAPTISTS GET EASTER GREETINGS FROM RUSSIANS

Russian Baptist leaders sent Easter greetings today — for the first time—to Baptists all over the world.

The Baptist World Alliance announced the greetings were sent by cable to the Rev. Dr.
Theodore Adams of Richmond, Va., the alliance president, by Russia's All-Union Council of Evangelical Christian Baptists.
A spokesman for the World
Alliance said it represents 22-000,000 Baptists in 80 countries and that the All-Union Council represents about 500,000 Russian Baptists.

REDS CRUSHINGLY DEFEATED IN ITALIAN FIAT LABOR VOTE

ROME, March 30 (UP)—Non-Communist labor unions inflicted a crushing defeat on the Communists in shop steward elections in the Fiat auto and aviation empire in Turin, official results disclosed today.
Official results showed the democratic unionists won three fourths of the shop-steward posts—a substantial increase over last year when they gained control from the Reds for the first time since the war.
In an election Feb. 29 at Fiat's Avio plants the Communists failed to win a single one of the shop stewards posts.

Communist control was once so strong in Italian labor unions that the United States Congress expressed doubt about giving defense contracts to some of the Italian plants.

MALENKOV TRIES TO ARRANGE VISIT WITH CHURCHILL

LONDON, March 30 (UP)—Former Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov, who already has visited with Prime Minister Eden on his tour of Britain, tried last night to wangle a meeting with former Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

At a party for 1500 guests at the Soviet Embassy, Malenkov chatted with numerous persons, clapping them on the back, shaking hands enthusiastically and signing autographs.

When he came to British Minister of Housing Duncan Sandys he asked that his personal greetings be delivered to Sir Winston. Sandys is married to Churchill's daughter, Diana.

"I would like very much to meet Sir Winston," Malenkov told Sandys through an interpreter.

The Soviet leader also had a long talk with Madame Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, sister of Indian Prime Minister Nehru. He told her he would like to visit India.

DEPORTEE WHO CAME BACK IS HELD IN JAIL

Former St. Louis Tavern Operator Facing Deportation Again.

Salvatore Moncado, former St. Louis tavern operator, was held in City Jail awaiting a hearing on charges he illegally returned to this country one year after his deportation to Italy in 1948.

Immigration authorities said Moncado re-entered the United States in 1949 as a stowaway aboard a ship. He was found after an extensive search, working as a linoleum layer at Sikeston, Mo., where he was taken into custody Tuesday.

Moncado was convicted in June 1937 of transporting women from Illinois to St. Louis for immoral purposes. He was sentenced by the late United States Judge John Caskie Collet to five years in prison. He disappeared for several years following his release from the penitentiary and was arrested by immigration authorities in 1947.

In a long legal fight to prevent his deportation, Moncado claimed he was not a native of Italy but was born in Buffalo, N.Y. Government officers testified, however, that his father had given contrary information when obtaining naturalization papers.

Moncado, who has been living with a son at Sikeston, will be given a hearing April 9 either here or in Chicago. He is being held under $2000 bond.

MAN AND WIFE ARRESTED AS SUSPECTS IN HOLDUP

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Walker, 700 block of North Euclid avenue, were held by police today as suspects in a drug store robbery in which $1200 and a large quantity of money order blanks were taken last Nov. 21. Money orders for about $3000, on some of the stolen forms, were cashed, police said.

The Walkers are Negroes. He had been sought since November, when he escaped from Homer G. Phillips Hospital, where he was taken after being injured when caught trying to rob a furniture store at 3801 South Kingshighway, officers reported.

The $1200 and money order blanks were taken in a holdup of the Pendleton Pharmacy, 4324 Easton avenue. Walter Cohen, the owner, and Wilbert Banks, a clerk, identified Walker as the one who tied them up, police said. He was accompanied by a woman, and they also took a quantity of narcotics.

Police reported Walker had keys that fit a stolen automobile found near his home after his arrest on Tuesday.

men, both Negroes, approached. He said he grabbed for one of the men, whom he thought had a toy pistol, when the other struck him. The first the snatched his wallet from his pocket and they both fled, Combs said.

LOUISIANA, U.S. ACT IN SUIT TO BAR N.A.A.C.P.

State Injunction Issued and Federal Judge Hands Down Show-Cause Order.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 20 (AP)—A state injunction, issued under a law originally aimed at the Ku Klux Klan, today blocked activity of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Louisiana—at least until a federal court takes up the case Wednesday.

At about the same time yesterday: 1. In Baton Rouge, state District Judge Coleman Lindsey barred the N.A.A.C.P. from "holding or conducting... any meeting of the officers and members thereof until they have complied" with a 1924 law requiring filing of membership lists yearly with the Secretary of State.

2. In New Orleans, United States District Judge J. Skelly Wright directed Louisiana to show cause Wednesday why an injunction should not be issued to halt the action against the N.A.A.C.P. in state court.

Attorney General's View. Attorney General Fred L. Bland said he did not think the federal action would affect the state injunction until after the hearing, but the federal judge could block any action by the state court if he ruled in favor of the N.A.A.C.P.

Earlier, Judge Lindsey overruled a plea by N.A.A.C.P. attorneys that their petition Wednesday seeking removal of the case to federal court, on the ground the state suit violated civil rights, automatically delayed the state hearing until a federal judge ruled.

The state seeks a permanent injunction against the N.A.A.C.P. and 10 individual defendants. However, Judge Lindsey limited the temporary injunction hearing yesterday to the organization itself. He set April 9 for a hearing on exceptions filed by individual defendants.

The state sought to prove the N.A.A.C.P. operated in Louisiana and had not filed the membership lists in the last three years.

N.A.A.C.P. Contention. Robert L. Carter, N.A.A.C.P. attorney from New York, contended the N.A.A.C.P. had been in operation since the law was passed, "but only now does the Attorney General see fit to invoke that statute." He contended it was an effort "to frustrate and curb" the civil rights activities of the N.A.A.C.P.

Carter later told a reporter the N.A.A.C.P. was reluctant to furnish the membership list because "if we made our membership public, we are afraid in small communities it would serve to single them out for intimidation and economic pressure."

Judge Lindsey said: "This law was passed 32 years ago for the avowed and admitted purpose of wiping out the Ku Klux Klan, and it did. I was a member of the Legislature that passed the act. It is also common knowledge that this group, the N.A.A.C.P., was one of the leading groups that prevailed on that Legislature to pass that law."

CLEARED IN SUPPOSED DEATH OF DAUGHTER

Suspect Produces Girl—Ex-Wife, Baby Found—He Faces Check Charge.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 30 (AP)—Investigation yesterday cleared Lloyd A. Dicus, 31-year-old former convict, of suspicion in:

1. The supposed death of his 3-year-old daughter. A 3-year-old girl had been found dead at Kansas City and identified as Dicus's daughter by a previous wife. Neighbors who made the identification said her name was Shirley Ann Dicus. When questioned at Neosho, Mo., Dicus immediately produced his 3-year-old daughter whose name is Shirley June.

2. The possibility of foul play in the disappearance of his former common-law wife, Mrs. Gretta June Cornish, 20, and 1-year-old daughter, Mozelle, who informants told police hadn't been seen since last December. Mrs. Cornish and Mozelle turned up in Baton Rouge, La.

The inquiry had not resulted in any identification for the body of a 3-year-old child which neighbors had identified as that of Dicus's daughter. They based their identification on clothing worn by the dead girl, similar to that worn by the Dicus child. Police are still investigating. The body is too deteriorated for positive identification.

Dicus, cleared of a supposed murder, was not out of the woods as far as the law is concerned. He was brought to Kansas City from Neosho, 150 miles to the south, and booked on a charge of check forgery. Word from Texas was that Dicus had served nearly three years for bigamy and 18 months for forgery. Lubbock (Tex.) police said Dicus had been married six times to five women.

Dicus was first sought in Kansas City and finally found in Neosho working in a filling station. He was living with a Mrs. Betty Boyd Howard, who said she married him in February under the name of Howard. She was jailed on a bigamy charge on the ground she had not divorced Basil Boyd of Commerce, Okla.

Mrs. Cornish told Baton Rouge police she had passed more than 30 bogus checks with Dicus on a trip from Los Angeles to Oklahoma City last year, then left him Dec. 10.

Mrs. Eddie S. Gilliland of Oklahoma City, mother of Mrs. Cornish, said she would seek custody of Shirley June and Mozelle.

FINED AS DRUNKEN DRIVER AFTER COLLISION OF AUTOS

LaVerne Rivers, an elevator operator, was fined $100 yesterday and his driver's license was suspended for 90 days when he was found guilty of driving when intoxicated by Police Judge Morris Rosenthal. Police testified Rivers, 1900 block of Marcus avenue, was arrested Jan. 21 after the automobile he was driving collided with another machine at Cottage and Cora avenues. Rivers denied driving the automobile.

Walter Harris, a laborer, was fined $125 after Judge Rosenthal convicted him of driving when intoxicated. His driver's license also was suspended for 90 days.

Police testified Harris, 4400 block of Delmar boulevard, was arrested Feb. 3 at Whittier street and Delmar after his automobile collided with a parked police squad car. Harris, a Negro, denied being drunk.

LIBYA REPORTED TO HAVE SPURNED SOVIET AID OFFER

TRIPOLI, Libya, March 30 (AP)—Libyan Premier Mustafa Ben Halim told a secret Parliament session his government has turned down a Soviet aid offer, informed sources said today.

Halim reportedly said he would issue a detailed statement on the refusal after the country finishes observing the Islamic holy month of Ramadan, which runs through April. Diplomatic sources in Washington said earlier this week Halim told Parliament his government stood with the West and wanted no part of Soviet help. The legislators had asked why no action had been taken on the Russian offer. United States officials said the United States will offer Libya aid as soon as the rejection becomes public. Libya was the first country to receive full independence under United Nations auspices in 1949. Britain and the United States maintain military forces there.

OFFICIALS BLASTED IN YUBA CITY FLOOD

Grand Jury Report Criticizes Both State and Local Agencies.

YUBA CITY, Calif., March 30 (AP)—The Sutter county grand jury issued a blistering 52-page criticism of state and local agencies yesterday for the Christmas day floods that killed 38 persons and caused $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 damage in the county.

The report was based on 10 days of testimony from 46 witnesses.

The grand jury: 1. Put major blame on the state division of water resources and state reclamation board for failure to notify Yuba City authorities officially of the imminence of the floods.

2. Blamed "neglect and incompetence of all the directors of levy district No. 1" for "the break at the Gum Tree which flooded the city."

3. Called "the lack of communication and co-operation between the various governmental agencies" when the levee broke at Gum Tree "so flagrant that it is incomprehensible."

4. Accused the Sutter county Board of Supervisors of failing to provide proper service and noted that only one of the five supervisors was in Yuba City at the time of the flood.

BLAST RIPS HOLE IN TANKER AT TEXAS PORT, TWO HURT

BAYTOWN, Tex., March 30 (AP)—An explosion and fire last night blasted a gaping hole in the side of a 10,000-ton oil tanker, the Esso Paterson, and sent two crewmen to the hospital. The explosion rocked Baytown on the Houston ship channel, and was felt in Houston, 25 miles away. It was at Texas City, 20 miles from Baytown, where a ship explosion killed 510 persons in 1947.

The Esso Paterson was taking on kerosene from the Humble refinery—one of the world's largest—when the blast ripped a hole 12 feet wide and 30 feet deep, extending from the water line to the deck, on the starboard side. The explosion came on the side away from the dock. Both injured crewmen were hurt when they jumped down 30 feet from the blazing ship to the dock. Cause of the blast was undetermined.

PRICES PAID TO FARMERS RISE 2 PCT. IN MONTH

WASHINGTON, March 30 (UP)—Prices farmers received for crops and livestock rose 2 per cent for the month ended March 15, the Department of Agriculture reported today.

The cost of production and living supplies purchased by farmers rose about two-thirds of 1 per cent during the month. Returns to farmer in mid-March averaged 82 per cent of parity. This compared to 81 per cent in mid-February and 86 per cent in mid-March of last year. Parity is the price needed to put commodities sold by farmers on a par with commodities they buy. Theoretically it gives them a fair return for their produce.

The department said prices for most crops increased during the month, sending the crop index up 3 1/2 per cent.

TWO CHILDREN SUFFOCATED IN AN OLD REFRIGERATOR

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 30 (UP)—Two small children were found suffocated yesterday in an old refrigerator. Sharon Heeb, 8 years old, and her brother, Raymond, 6, removed the trays and climbed into the ice box while their mother was sleeping.

CAMBODIAN PREMIER QUILTS WITH BLAST AT U.S. PRESS

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, March 30 (AP)—The resignation of Cambodian Premier Prince Norodom Sihanouk and his cabinet has been accepted by the Prince's father, King Norodom Suramarit, it was announced today.

Sihanouk told the nation in a radio address last night that he intended to resign. He complained that the American press had knifed his foreign policy—neutralist between Red China and the Western powers.

The United States has granted Cambodia about $50,000,000 in economic and military aid for the 1956 fiscal year. The Prince visited Peiping last month and signed a friendship agreement with Communist China. He also is reported to have accepted "in principle" a Chinese offer of economic aid.

Ready for Eggog?

ATLANTA, Ga., March 30 (AP)—An Easter egg hunt at an elementary school turned up 8 1/2 gallons of moonshine whisky. Pupils were searching for eggs yesterday and uncovered the contraband hidden under the steps of the school, police said.

MEMPHIS, March 30 (UP)—Nick (the Greek) Montos, only criminal ever to make the FBI's "10 Most Wanted" list twice, and Robert Lloyd Jones, an escaped convict, were surprised by FBI agents at a motel early today and taken without a shot being fired.

FBI agents poured tear gas into the sleeping fugitives' room and forced them to come out with their hands up despite the fact they had a small arsenal with them. Their arrest came only six days after the FBI announced that Montos was considered a suspect in last Saturday's $89,000 bank robbery at Tampa, Fla., Montos's home town.

Montos, an expert safe cracker and burglar, and Jones, a convicted murderer, had been fugitives since they used a hacksaw to cut their way to freedom from Mississippi's Parchman state prison on Jan. 10, 1955.

That was the fifth escape for Montos. He originally was put on the FBI's "10 most wanted" criminal list Sept. 8, 1952. He was captured by the FBI Aug. 23, 1954. After his escape last January, he was placed on the list again March 2.

Vindication of Red Plot Victims May Lead to Truth on All Purges And Throw Light on Stalin Death Pieces Falling Into Place Indicate Khrushchev and Other Top Leaders Were in Danger—Clearing Name of Hungary's Rajk First Step in Exposure.

By HARRISON E. SALISBURY

Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.
NEW YORK, March 30.

POST-MORTEM rehabilitation of the reputation of Laszlo Rajk, Hungarian Communist chief, appears to open the way for the rewriting of all the plots and purges which marked the final years of the Stalin epoch.

Before the process has been finished the inside story of the Kremlin "doctors' plot" may be told. And an answer may have been given to the biggest of all—how did Stalin die?

It will take some time before the Soviet leaders can revise the whole record of the purges and "plots" which marked the history of the Soviet Union and its satellites in the last years of Stalin's rule.

But the clearing of the record of Rajk, who was executed in 1949, is an essential first step. Khrushchev set stage.

The background for the action in the Rajk case was established in Moscow by party secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev in his private speech on Stalin made to the twentieth congress of the Soviet Communist party last month.

In his address, Khrushchev confirmed what foreign observers had long suspected—that Stalin suffered from a "plot psychosis" and from phobias of conspiracy. Khrushchev asserted that Stalin was "not himself" in his later years.

Khrushchev also confirmed another fact long known to foreigners: That, in the course of the periodic purges the lives of thousands of innocent victims were sacrificed.

Rajk was executed in Hungary in September 1949 after the first of a series of "show" trials of Communist leaders which occurred in virtually all the satellite countries. At the same time, quiet purges were underway in the Soviet Union itself.

Foreshadowing Events. In the opinion of Soviet specialists, the stage for the Rajk trial and the others which followed was cleared by two events in 1948.

The first, and best known, was the break between Marshal Tito and Stalin which led to the expulsion of Yugoslavia from the Cominform on June 29, 1948.

From many sources it is known that the break with Tito aroused great fears in Stalin's mind concerning the security of the Soviet position both at home and in the satellite countries.

Soon after the break with Tito, a second event occurred which was of significance in what followed. This was the unexpected—but apparently natural—death of the important Soviet Politburo member and frequently mentioned possible successor to Stalin, Andrei A. Zhdanov.

About a month after Zhdanov's death, Stalin and Levrenti P. Beria, the Soviet Police Chief who was executed by Stalin's successors in December, 1953, went south to Crimea for a long vacation. It was in October 1948. It was one of the longest stays out of Moscow which Stalin had made since the end of World War II.

It is almost certain, in the opinion of Soviet specialists, that the initial outline of the last orgy of purges took shape during that joint vacation of Stalin and his police chief.

Witches Broth of Purges. From what Khrushchev has said about Stalin's condition, it seems likely that Tito's "treachery," the sudden death of Zhdanov, and Stalin's phobias about security became associated in the old dictator's mind.

Either Stalin himself or Beria or other inner Kremlin intimates would appear to have fashioned from these ingredients a new witches' broth of purge and plot.

The results followed quickly, first in Russia and then in the satellites. In Russia itself, a quiet but deadly purge struck followers of the late Zhdanov. It was in this period that Nikolai A. Voznesensky, Soviet state planner, member of the Politburo and a close associate of Zhdanov, disappeared. It is now known that he was arrested in February or March of 1949.

A number of Leningrad Communist leaders, also associated with Zhdanov, were arrested. All of these men were eventually shot. The exact date of their execution is not known, but it probably occurred in 1950 after a Soviet law forbidding capital punishment in such cases was revised.

Anti-Semitic Drive Recalled. There was also an anti-Semitic campaign in the Soviet Union, starting late in 1948 and continuing into 1949. Soviet authorities closed down many Jewish cultural institutions. Prominent Jews were purged. Many were arrested and some of these were eventually executed, possibly in the summer of 1952.

The Rajk case—the first of the series outside Russia—broke in the spring of 1949. Rajk, a loyal Communist of long standing, was accused with a group of colleagues of conspiring with Tito and the American intelligence services.

Rajk was executed with some of his associates in September, 1949. His case set the pattern for those which followed. The next case was that of Traicho Kosta, No. 2 Communist of Bulgaria. He was arrested not long after Rajk. His trial and execution occurred late in 1949. The charges against him were an echo of those against Rajk, but in his

House Group Says ICA Bungled Aid Operations in Latin America

Charges Misleading Reports, Pressure Tactics on Nations, Misrepresentations of Their Contributions to Programs.

The New York Times News Service.
Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.
WASHINGTON, March 30.

THE INTERNATIONAL Co-operation Administration was accused by a House investigating subcommittee today of bungling technical assistance operations in Latin America. This was one of comparatively few complaints that had been entered against the technical aid phase of the over-all foreign aid program.

The panel, headed by Representative Porter Hardy Jr., Democrat of Virginia, charged also that misleading statistical reports had confused Congress and given false weight, or lack of weight, to the contributions made by the countries receiving United States help.

Further, the panel held, those in charge of technical assistance in Latin America were not living up to demands that no technical assistance program go to a country unless it requested it. There were distinct signs, the Hardy panel stated, that on-the-ground representatives had employed salesmanship pressures to institute programs which the countries didn't want and didn't want to pay their share of them.

The findings of the subcommittee were based on checks made last year in 11 of the 19 Latin American countries participating in the program.

From this testimony the panel concluded:

1. That the statistical reports reaching Washington as to the operations of programs were unrealistic and misleading as to how those in charge of the programs had accounted for their stewardship.

2. That Congress was receiving budget requests for appropriations through a system that required only general reports—on one occasion a single sentence—as to how money would be spent. It recommended that this system be halted at once.

3. That something must be done to stop an alleged inflating of contributions made by host countries that are supposed to pay their fair share of any technical assistance project. Under a dual application of currency exchange values, the panel held, a recipient country could be made to look like it contributed heavily to the aid it received but actually contributed little or nothing.

RUSSIANS PROPOSE EXCHANGE VISITS OF POWER EXPERTS

The New York Times News Service.
Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.
WASHINGTON, March 30.

The State Department is considering a Soviet proposal for the exchange of what the Russians call "energetics" delegations.

"Energetics," as the Russians use it, includes power engineering in all fields—hydro-electric, coal-generated and atomic. State Department officials said, however, that the Russians appeared to be interested in electric power derived from water power and coal, and had not as yet mentioned atomic energy.

The officials understood that the Russians wanted the tour to be on a technical rather than on a high official level. For that reason they did not think it likely Moscow would seek to send Georgi Malepov, minister of electric power stations who is now touring Britain.

The talks, proceeding here intermittently for about six weeks, are still dealing with the principle of the proposed exchange. Discussion of the persons who might visit the United States will come later. The Russians have proposed to send a group of eight to 15.

FLEESON Hall Strategy The Same: Sell Eisenhower

Chairman to Build Campaign on President's Popularity.

By DORIS FLEESON
WASHINGTON.

"THAT stuff just doesn't rub off on Ike."

Publicity director Richard G. Gullay of the Republican National Committee is speaking. His comment is more than a quick answer to reporters who call him about the present flood of farm revolt news. It is not merely a legitimate reply by a publicity director.

Gullay is speaking by the Republican policy book. His boss, National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, believes absolutely that voters do not blame President Eisenhower for anything. The Hall strategy remains the same: to sell Mr. Eisenhower, the peace and prosperity maker who is far above the battle of sectional or vested interests.

Hall's confidence rests, first of all, on his own conversations with hundreds of persons, his mail from thousands more. He has studied a host of polls, national and state, plus some private soundings he ordered.

A poll expert has assured him that the Eisenhower popularity is a phenomenon in the public opinion field but a genuine fact of life. The Republican campaign will be built on it.

Discontent May Be Costly.

The chairman is not neglecting the ominous signs from farm areas. Even if he is right about Mr. Eisenhower, serious discontent in those areas could cost his party control of Congress. Six Republican Senators are up for re-election in Midwest farm states: Frank Carlson of Iowa, Francis Case of South Dakota, Milton R. Young of North Dakota, Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin and Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. Any one of them who goes down will take House members with them.

Midwest Republicans of proved sagacity are among those who have been writing Washington friend such comments as: "The Democrats ought to be down on their knees thanking the Lord for Benson." "Dr. Gallup may turn out to be the

ALSO Security Council Degenerates Into an Agency of Indecision, Cuts Government From Public Pressure for Unanimity Results in Gassy Generalities—System Has Seeped Down to Other Departments—Cabinet Now Shadow of a Shadow.

By STEWART ALSOP
WASHINGTON.

THE NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL, the nation's top policy-making body, was formed for the soundest of reasons and has often performed most usefully. Yet it is time to ask whether, on balance, the whole governmental system which has grown up around the NSC has not proved a dangerous failure.

The laudable purpose of the NSC was to provide the Government with a single, coherent policy, instead of half a dozen insanely competing policies. The idea was that the principal policy-making officers would meet regularly to hammer out policies on the major issues, for submission to the President.

But as the years have passed, certain unanticipated consequences of the NSC system have become apparent.

In the first place, the council has tended to become an instrument, not for reaching hard decisions, but for reaching the lowest common denominator of indecision. President Eisenhower, as in the matter of Quemoy and Matsu, will occasionally take matters into his own hands and over-ride the NSC.

But, like President Truman before him, and for understandable reasons, he heartily dislikes "split papers." Thus the NSC system generates a heavy pressure for unanimity at all costs.

Thence, the ten bolts down to gassy generalities—many NSC papers these days are reliably reported to consist of meaningless couched in impeccable governmentese, and nothing else at all. And when real decisions cannot be avoided, unanimity is almost always achieved simply by splitting the difference.

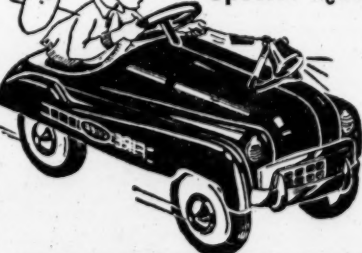

Do we, for example, make a major effort to overtake the Soviet lead in missile development, or is it more important to balance the budget? In the NSC, difference is split. The missile effort is stepped up somewhat, but not enough to throw the budget out of whack—or to catch up with Soviets.

This difference—of splitting is about as useful as a bridge half way across a river. The NSC system has, moreover, seeped relentlessly down

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Help for Leonard Wood

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I read with a great deal of interest your editorial on Fort Leonard Wood. It is indeed fortunate that the fort was finally declared permanent. But as you say, there is much yet to be done in order to make it what it should be.

I realize that in mentioning Senators Symington and Hennings you did not intend to overlook the outstanding work that was also done by Representatives Short and Carnahan. Whether we like it or not, the seniority system in both House and Senate is important. The fact that Missouri has Dewey Short, with his seniority, gives the state powerful representation.

This should in no way take credit from Senators Symington and Hennings or Congressman Carnahan. They worked very hard. But having been very close to this, I know how much Mr. Short's support meant. People in this section of Missouri realize this. W. P. MITCHELL, Waynesville, Mo.

I sincerely hope that making the fort permanent does not conclude the responsibility of those citizens who supported such a move. Aside from the military consideration there exists the problem of community and commercial contact.

Along the highway strip running east-west one meets dubious enterprises waiting patiently and confidently for soldiers' pay. The nearby town of Waynesville could easily be described as a sociologist's dream. The town presents a business district that closely resembles a concentrated nightmare alley. Any serviceman who enters this trap has a rough voyage.

In describing the housing one could begin with inadequate and head southward with other descriptions. Those structures known as hotels should be condemned before they are burned out by a careless cigarette. JACK YAKER, Rolla, Mo.

An Intrepid Canine

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
My apologies to reader C. E. Owen for having given offense by referring to the Boston terrier as a "lap dog." After reading what he has to say of the many merits of his particular Boston, I would say that it must give him a singular sense of security to be the owner of such an intrepid canine. Woe to the intruder meeting up with this formidable creature—all 10 pounds of him.

In fact, it would seem that with such a protector, Mr. Owen has "nothing to fear but fear itself." A. H. GALE.

Food for the Needy

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Our best representative in the Congress, Mr. Leonard Sullivan, has been working very hard to get a food-stamp plan through so our own needy persons can get a share of the surplus food which Mr. Benson is giving away everywhere except in the United States.

Both my Senators tell me that Mr. Benson is bitterly opposed to Mr. Sullivan's attempt to make Americans as good as foreigners. He fights the idea at every turn.

According to several reports I have read Mr. Benson thinks this would be "socialistic," and of course very bad. And yet the same Mr. Benson advocates giving the food away overseas to fight "socialism!" That seems very strange. How can it help in one country and be harmful in another? Perhaps Mr. Benson should just go back to Utah and sit down quietly until his head stops whirling.

Three separate news items, all appearing recently, add to the confusion. The first said we have no more "surplus" butter—it has all been given away overseas. The second said Mr. Benson had just bought 69,046,450 pounds of canned pork—this, I presume, is now "surplus."

The third told us that in a foreign country which fought against us in World War II, a million food packages are being distributed each month and that three-fourths of that food was coming from United States surplus stocks.

Our own poor people are not as good as a former enemy it seems. JOHN M. FISHELL.

Our Common Ancestor?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
With reference to your March 14 editorial, "Older Than We Think," older than who thinks?

H. G. Wells, in his "The Outline of History" (first edition printed, 1920), says: "Conceivably, the precursor of the men and sub-men... was at the opening of the Cretaceous Period."

Ralph L. Beals and Harry Hoelzer in "An Introduction to Anthropology" say: "Modern apes and men, it is now clear, are not very far removed in ancestry. Their common progenitor must clearly have been a Tertiary form, probably no earlier than the Oligocene, or about 40,000,000 years ago."

GEORGE J. ORNAS, Columbia, Mo.

The recent Pittdown and Italian exposes have proved one thing: That science could afford to be a little more careful in its judgment and theorizing. Perhaps to prevent future embarrassment it might be a little more tolerant toward "skepticism" also. JOHN L. ROMJUE, Columbia, Mo.

Congress Up to Easter

Congress has begun its 10-day Easter recess without completing action on the farm bill. This shabby performance typifies pretty well the whole session to date.

The Senate had three full months in which to thresh out its differences over farm policy and go into conference with House representatives. It could do no better than concoct a catch-all, hodge-podge, patchwork piece of legislation that stands a good chance of being vetoed. And so while members during the recess mend their political fences or enjoy themselves on Florida junkets, many farmers must start planting without knowing what this year's farm program is to be.

It is not quite fair to apply Harry Truman's tag-line—the "do-nothing Congress"—to this second session of the 84th. Something has been done, and more will be. Both Houses commendably resisted the temptation to play politics with the President's request for postponement of excise and corporation tax cuts in this boom year. The Upper Colorado river development bill, without the objectionable Echo Park dam, has gone to the White House. Some sort of action seems fairly certain on highway construction, campaign spending, social security revision and foreign aid.

Not the absence but the kind of action is the point on which this session and its leadership deserves criticism. Precious weeks were spent in the Senate passing a natural gas bill to undercut effective regulation of this public utility. When Senator Francis Case's famous $2500 campaign contribution created an uproar, more days were lost in smothering a full investigation of this and other contributions by the gas and other lobbies. Then, while Majority Leader Johnson tried to water down Senator Hennings's bill to control campaign expenditures, more days were spent in futile debate of immature and contradictory electoral college reform plans.

The common element in these events is a confused, uncertain leadership, particularly in the Senate, which sometimes pays more attention to the preservation of its own political position than to the fashioning of constructive legislation.

All politicians play politics. That is to be expected. Yet the good ones know that the best politics in the end is action that serves the real needs of the people. It is not enough to manipulate political forces so that a certain leader or faction can retain control; that power must be used for broadly beneficial purposes if its continuation is to be justified before the voters.

Whether the post-Easter phase of this Congress makes a notably better record than the pre-Easter phase will depend very largely upon the vision and broad-mindedness (or lack of them) of such men as Senate Leader Johnson, House Speaker Rayburn, and the other Democratic leaders, mostly from the South, who control the legislative machinery. Will they be able to rise above purely sectional interests enough to fashion workable compromises which serve the national interest?

No better test is to be found than the school aid bill, perhaps the single most important domestic issue facing this Congress. A strong, alert and farsighted congressional leadership would have forestalled the unfortunate "manifesto" on school segregation, which has hardened attitudes on both sides of this question. Having muffed that one, the leadership now has a responsibility to disentangle the school construction bill from the segregation controversy—and get it passed.

If Lyndon Johnson and Sam Rayburn can do that, they may in part redeem the dismal record of the first half of this session, and demonstrate that they have some other title than mere seniority to hold their positions of congressional power.

Airport Note

Somebody had better do something quick about that photo-mural of a Cardinal ball game in the Budweiser exhibit at the new airport terminal. The score board shows the Giants leading, 7 to 2. In the third inning, still at bat and nobody out.

Feeling the Urge of Spring

Except for the astronomy-and-mathematics people who fix an equinox to the minute, the seasons have a way of blending into each other almost imperceptibly. Yet there are signs when change is under way.

Even when the temperature still is in the 90s, the spread of goldenrod and the budding of chrysanthemums declare that the air soon will freshen and that the leaves are about to turn. Though still full of autumnal glory, shortening days warn of the first cold rains of winter soon to fall. The ground may be covered by snow when the first crocus and the first bird herald spring. And the thumb, the green thumb, begins to itch. When that itch leads to work around still drab and dead flowerbeds, then spring is really here.

This year the Aldermen have been feeling that itch, and now they have been moved by it. They have voted $58,000 for tearing up and redesigning the streets in the cleared area between the Memorial and Alce plazas. And that, of course, is the first step to planting grass and setting out shrubs and trees.

This new job of municipal gardening is not to be taken merely as an indication of spring's arrival. It also is a welcome sign that downtown St. Louis, just like the seasons, is turning from drabness to verdure. The sap is rising. The buds are thickening. There is new substance to the promise of coming beauty.

Strait-Jacket for St. Louis County

Councilman James A. Singer's plan for a revision of St. Louis county's budget procedure provides as much improvement over the present system as is possible without amending the County Charter. It certainly ought to be adopted.

Two factors combine to create the budget problem. The first is the continuous growth of the county. This makes for increasing demands for service on the county government, and that in turn requires more money. But the second factor—the budget procedure required by the Charter—makes it impossible for the Council to appropriate fully in accordance with indicated needs.

Under existing procedures 1956 spending is limited to actual receipts for the year 1954 plus any surplus for 1955. Mr. Singer's plan would have the effect of setting 1956 spending on the basis of last year's receipts. To permit this year's spending to be determined by an estimate of this year's receipts would require a Charter amendment.

The two largest political subdivisions in this metropolitan area on the basis of their budgets are the City of St. Louis and the St. Louis Board of Education. Both are permitted to appropriate on the basis of anticipated current revenue. In our opinion St. Louis county also should enjoy similar authority, and the Council ought to take the lead in submitting such an amendment.

Off the Hook

The Supreme Court's acceptance of the Government's complaint against the State of Louisiana, to determine jurisdiction over the oil-rich submerged coastal lands, comes as a welcome relief.

Since the court's refusal last October to accede to the Department of Justice's request that it settle the Louisiana boundary dispute as part of a 1950 case, hope for eventual adjudication had been at a low ebb. Meanwhile the federal and state jurisdictions had been at verbal war with each other over the leasing of the disputed area in the Gulf of Mexico.

This whole legal box of nettles was opened by the Submerged Lands Act of 1953. In that piece of ill-considered legislation Congress flew in the face of repeated decisions by the Supreme Court that sovereignty over the submerged coastal belt resided in the Federal Government. The Act "quitclaimed" the area out to the historic limits of the states—wherever those were—as though it were no more than property.

The court is now called on to undo the mischief which Congress did. The Government which is appealing to the court in its extremity is the Government of the same President who promised as a candidate to turn over the coastal belts to the states and who made it one of the first acts of his Administration to sign the measure which is causing so much trouble now.

It is to be hoped that, after this costly object lesson, Mr. Eisenhower now agrees with the court that jurisdiction over the offshore areas is an adjunct of national sovereignty. With an Administration policy upholding that principle, order might eventually be expected to emerge from the Government's self-inflicted chaos.

Mr. Big as Nobody Much

John Maragon, who started his career as a bootblack in Kansas City and rose to be an influence peddler and 5 percenter in the Truman Administration, is working as a laborer in the House folding room at $1.61 an hour. The man who rubbed elbows with the great and near-great is rubbing aching backs with manual workers in the same Washington where he was sought after, a few short years ago, with offers of free deep-freezers and plush jobs. It's quite a come-down—or come-up, depending on the point of view.

What Mr. Maragon the Big Shot said led to his indictment for perjury and 19 months in a federal reformatory on a two-year sentence. What Mr. Maragon the Little Fellow says now is: "I'm getting tired of living on handouts or on my wife's earnings. This is a job and I'm earning my pay."

They called him "lovable John" back in 1949. Maybe he was lovable then, but comparing what he did and said on these two occasions, there are many people who will consider that he is a lot more likeable now.

A Balloon Comes Down

Any evidence obtained by Circuit Attorney Edward Dowd about police pay-offs should be turned over to the Board of Police Commissioners. So says the final report of the grand jury to Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh.

The grand jurors themselves make no complaints about the police. Only one witness appeared before them and she refused to testify. A previous grand jury did return three indictments. But the present jurors declare that St. Louis has one of the finest police departments in the country. The police board should manage its affairs.

Except for the three cases pending in court, this sounds like the quiet ending of Mr. Dowd's police expose. That investigation started with sensational charges of pay-offs and hoodlum influence in the police department. It went on for weeks and weeks. Maybe those three indictments and their prosecution by the Circuit Attorney may yet support the original charges.

In a force of many hundreds of policemen, some faithlessness is almost inevitable. This does not mean that it is to be condoned. The commanding officers and the members of the Board of Police Commissioners must ever seek to keep the force beyond reproach. They may not look the other way.

Yet they would be superhuman if they caught every single lapse. And that certainly would not justify sensational charges.

Luck and a Near Miss in Midair

One group thoroughly conversant with the dangers inherent in crowded airports and swarming airports is the men who pilot airliners over the world routes. They have cited the peril both in this country and abroad and it is well emphasized by an incident this week that came within a split hair of disaster over London.

The pilot of a British European Airways plane suddenly saw a jet fighter "right on top" of him. He missed collision with a violent dive that tossed passengers from their seats, injuring 10 of them. That lucky miss is an excellent example of why Capt. J. D. Smith, the Air Line Pilots Association regional safety chairman for New York, asked in the union bulletin this month: "Have increased traffic density and fast closure speeds reached the point where pilots must fly beyond human abilities of eyesight and reaction time?" His answer: "At best we're gambling."

Because of such conditions, President Eisenhower recently appointed Edward P. Curtis as his special assistant for aviation facilities with instructions to clear up the traffic jam in the skies. Because military jets and airliners are using the same crowded Lambert-St. Louis Field, a move is afoot to get an all-military airport for the St. Louis area. The responsibilities that will come with the advent of jet airliners in 1958 are demanding attention right now.

After Two Years' Debate

After more than two years of controversy that reached into every part of the nation, the Upper Colorado river development project has finally made its way through Congress. The adopted version was shorn of the Echo Park dam project, which would have invaded the Dinosaur National Monument and was opposed by conservationists all over the country.

Without this objectionable feature, the project will conserve and put to multiple uses the waters of the Colorado river system. A great tier of western states will benefit directly, to the enrichment of the entire Union. The $760,000,000 works, like TVA, Grand Coulee, Bonneville, the Southwestern Power Administration and the Missouri Valley project, will be a new engineering wonder in the service of all the people.

HELLISH CANYON PROJECT

Mr. Nixon's Campaign Tactics

The Mirror of Public Opinion

He implies rather than charges, imputes rather than accuses; so while he did not call Democrats "party of treason," his implications were plain; millions feel that such methods do not fit him for the possible occupancy of the White House.

An Editorial in The Commonwealth

In recent weeks Mr. Nixon the Campaigner, as opposed to Mr. Nixon the Vice President, has been back in the news.

For a long time reports have persisted that many influential Republicans would like to see him off the G.O.P. ticket this fall, no matter what President Eisenhower decided about a second term. This is the case, even though Mr. Eisenhower swears by his Vice President and is unable to understand why so many people are so strongly anti-Nixon. Nixon supporters, on the other hand, insist that the things people say about their man simply are not true.

Along this line, Leonard Hall, the chairman of the Republican party, recently offered to give $1000 out of his own pocket to anyone who could prove that Mr. Nixon had ever called Harry Truman a traitor, or had ever referred to the Democrats as the "party of treason."

Mr. Hall's money is, we think, safe enough, if only on a technicality. Mr. Nixon was never one to be quite so direct. He implies, rather than charges; he imputes, rather than accuses. But the effect is much the same.

Contrary to President's Wishes

In the 1954 campaign, although President Eisenhower said he hoped the Communists-in-Government question would not be an issue, Mr. Nixon harped on it constantly.

In September he was quoted in the papers as saying that the Eisenhower Administration had "kicked the Communists out of Government not by the hundreds, but by the thousands."

The following month he qualified this statement by including that vaguest of all catch-alls, the "security risk," but the general effect was the same:

"We have driven the Communists, the fellow travelers, and the security risks out of Government by the thousands. I stand by that statement."

Later in the same month The New York Times reported: "Vice President Nixon says that if a Congress of Adlai Stevenson's choosing is elected the security risks which have been fired by the Eisenhower Administration will all be hired back."

From California the A.P. reported on Mr. Nixon's campaigning: "There is nothing the Communists would like better than a return to the Truman loyalty program under which Communist agents were cleared and hired," said the Vice President.

As for Mr. Truman personally, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch recently dug up another entry for the Nixon exhibit, this one a 1952 Associated Press dispatch:

"Senator Richard Nixon told a Texas-Arkansas crowd today that President Truman and Adlai E. Stevenson are 'traitors to the high principles' of the Democratic party. He said they tolerated and defended Communists in Government."

Not once was Mr. Truman specifically called a traitor to America. Not once are the Democrats referred to as the "party of treason." But the implications of Mr. Nixon's remarks are unmistakable.

The sad part about all this is that Mr. Nixon himself sometimes seems genuinely confused. Apparently he is a man who very much likes to be liked, and he does not understand why, after the campaign is over, people do not simply forget and forget.

Forgets the Aftereffect

He cannot seem to get it into his head that there are some things one cannot do if political life is to go on peacefully after an election is finished.

One can criticize, slash hard, accuse opponents of stupidity, blindness, inefficiency—any number of things.

But it is impossible to imply that one's opponents deliberately betrayed the interests of the United States and then expect to be able to work with these men after the campaign is over as if nothing had happened.

Right now, for example, a good case could be made that, vis a vis the Russians, the United States is in worse shape than it was in 1952.

Considerable evidence is available to indicate that the Soviet Union is outmaneuvering us in the field of foreign policy, and solid indications exist that our military position has deteriorated rather than improved since the Republicans took office.

Beyond Mr. Nixon's Grasp

The Democrats are entitled to make all these points, we think, as convincingly as possible. What they are not entitled to do is to imply that our worst position is due to secret softness toward Communism by Secretary of State Dulles, or to the deliberate hiring of "security risks" by Mr. Nixon, or to a fondness for traitors by President Eisenhower.

Such tactics would make American political life impossible, because they would transform politics into a war of extermination.

Yet this point seems to be the one Mr. Nixon has always failed to grasp. Mr. Nixon will almost certainly be on the G.O.P. ticket this fall. But neither he nor his followers should expect this news to be greeted by universal dancing in the streets.

His methods may win elections, but millions of Americans still feel that such tactics hardly fit a man for possible occupancy of the White House.

Scotland's Seaweed Harvest

From The Manchester (England) Guardian

It is quite probable that few people were aware, until the report of the Institute of Seaweed was published the other day, that the seaweed harvest of our Scottish shores is worth $2,800,000 annually.

Seaweed has been a valuable product of the rocky northern coasts for centuries, but, like many another industry, it has had its ups and downs. For a very long time it was used as manure, and it still is by the men who till the soil of the remote crofts in the outer isles.

One of the first industrial uses of seaweed was in the manufacture of iodine. Great masses of the weed were gathered and burned, and from the resultant kelp iodine was obtained. Prosperity stayed until someone discovered that iodine could be obtained much more cheaply from the nitrates of Peru and Chile.

This brought sad times to the isles again until the discovery, just after World War II, that seaweed could be made the effective base of a multitude of products, from cosmetics to custard powder and ice cream. So seaweed has again brought a measure of prosperity to the communities of the north-west.

Today, on the wild, sandy shore of the western coast of South Uist, the seaweed is carefully raked into heaps to be collected by car for transport to the factory on the southwest of the island. Here the seaweed is stacked, dried, milled, and then shipped to the mainland factories for processing.

A Plain Woman's Romance
HANNAH FOWLER, by Janice Holt Giles. (Houghton Mifflin, 312 pp., $3.75.)

As far as romance was concerned, it didn't look like Hannah Fowler had a chance. She was tall and big in every way. Her shoulders were square, her hips were broad, the reach of her legs was long. She was strongly built, not gaunt, but angular and spare-fleshed. Her face was long and her cheekbones were high and flat. The black brows grew thick and heavy. The mouth was wide, with firm, full lips. She was a plain woman. For all her 25 years, there was something unfinished about her, an awkwardness that belongs to youth. She was a pioneer woman in the days when Kentucky was the frontier. She had what it took. Romance came to her, fullness of life and fruition.

Hannah Fowler didn't ask for more than the night that she slid from the stool onto the floor and sat there with her face against the cradle, looking into the fire. Me and him, she thought, we got us a house-place, and we got us this little youngun, and we got a cow and horses and pigs and sheep and chickens. Me and Tice, we got all this. That was romance for Hannah Fowler.

Life was hard, there in the mountains, for Hannah and Tice, and sometimes there was heartbreak, but in the sharing of it there was over-all contentment and fulfillment for both of them, and sharing in it, as faithfully depicted by Janice Holt Giles, is a heart-warming experience for the easy-chair descendants of pioneers like Hannah and Tice.

Promises Since Columbus

AMERICAN TESTAMENT (THE STORY OF A PROMISED LAND), by Colin Leppel and Noah Ben-Tovim. (Grace Books, 576 pp., $5.)

This work by the authors is a prosaic history of America, going back to events which led to its discovery by Columbus to the present day. The result is that the book is superficial and chiefly relates the non-sensitive historical facts concerning the nation's growth from an undeveloped primitive area to the position of world leader. The reader, throughout the book, will recall having previously read much of the information included in the discourse, "American Testament," however, is written in an interesting style and could serve as a reference book.

Glamour As a Commodity

GLAMOUR BOOK, by Lilly Dache. (Lippincott, 315 pp., $3.75.)

"I have found that glamour is one of the world's most important commodities. With it, a woman can get almost anything she wants out of life. Without it, she may still achieve a certain success, but whatever she gains will be—how do you say it?—the hard way." This success program includes diet, exercise, the right hat, jule d'vivre and 37 make-up items, from astringent to vitamin cream (for aging skin). These items are "weapons and ammunition," aptly enough. The author-designer presents rather standard and general beauty tips.

WALTER LIPPMANN

The Disunited Democrats

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY, it is now evident, is in another of those periods of inner conflict which it passes through about once in each political generation.

The party was sharply divided in the days of William Jennings Bryan. Then Woodrow Wilson united it. After Wilson, it became bitterly divided over prohibition and Ku Klux Klan until Roosevelt, in the days of the great depression, united it in the New Deal. Since the death of Roosevelt at the end of the war the tension between Northern and Southern Democrats has been increasing. Gov. Stevenson, who is a national leader in the line of Wilson and Roosevelt, has been trying, but not successfully, to reunite the party.

There is a real and important issue between Stevenson and the one hand, Truman, Kefauver and Harriman on the other. It is not about whether Stevenson is too moderate in his approach to the issue of whether he can give the Republicans better hell than Kefauver or Harriman.

There is a deep Stevenson question of party policy and party strategy: Is there to be a united Democratic front or are the Democrats to run, as under Truman in 1948, as a Northern party?

The Party's Choices.

Should they aim to win the presidency by preserving the united front with the Southern Democrats who are in control of Congress? If so, Stevenson is their man, indeed their only possible man.

Or, shall they let the erring Southern brothers go Republican or Dixiecrat while they fight the election as a militant Northern party appealing to the Farm Belt and to the big cities?

If so, they can make their choice of Kefauver, Harriman, and perhaps some others in an open convention in which former President Truman, the hero of 1948, will be dominant.

The New Hampshire and Minnesota primaries indicated that among Northern Democrats the balance has turned rather emphatically against the policy of a united front under Gov. Stevenson. Why is this?

No Over-Riding Issue.

It is because there is not now any national issue which overrides, as in Wilson's time and in Roosevelt's, sectional and local interests. A united front policy means giving the local interests something less than they want. It can work only when there is something so big, such as a war or a depression, that local interests are not all-important.

Truman, Kefauver and Harriman are in a position to say, "we told you to last autumn when Gov. Stevenson announced his candidacy; we told you then that the Democrats must run as a militant party, ignoring the South, and seeking the Negro vote, the labor vote, and the farm vote in the Northern states." They did not put it quite so frankly, but what they were asking for was that the party should follow the Truman pattern of 1948. Although they have by no means proved that the Truman pattern could win again in 1956, what has happened since Gov. Stevenson announced on Nov. 15 has done much to justify their view that this is not a favorable year for a united Democratic front.

It is, however, only fair to remember that Nov. 15 was seven weeks after the President was stricken, and that there was no good reason then to think that he could or would conduct a genuine campaign for re-election.

Since November.

Last November there were the best of reasons for supposing that the Democratic candidate would be pitted against Nixon, either as candidate for President or as candidate for Vice President along with a frail Eisenhower.

Against Nixon, the Democrats had every prospect of winning with Stevenson and the policy of a united front. For Stevenson, more than any other man in either party, possesses the unifying spirit which is the secret of Eisenhower's appeal to the people. The Gallup poll was insistent upon Stevenson's ability to beat Nixon.

It is the President's remarkable recovery which has transformed the situation.

Stevenson and the united front have had no effective support either among the Northern or the Southern Democratic politicians. The first allegiance of politicians is to the constituency in which they have to be elected, and for that reason a united front policy can never be the first choice of politicians. The Southern Democrats, who are in control of Congress, have in this session done nothing to make it easier, much to make it harder, for Stevenson to carry on the policy of the united front.

Sectional Policy.

The Southern Democratic politicians in Congress have followed a sectional policy which, no doubt, helped them in their own constituencies. But it divides the national party. They began with Senator Lyndon Johnson's natural gas bill, and they went on to Senator George's manifesto about segregation. Since then, the Democratic party has been so deeply divided that it is almost impossible to imagine how a common platform can be agreed to at the national convention.

The situation could change in the months to come. But on the prospect of an Eisenhower-Nixon Republican ticket, one may have doubts whether any of the leading Democratic politicians in the North or in the South are really interested in the presidency.

In part, that may be because they feel that the Democrats have an outside chance to win the presidency. But it may also be because they have done well enough, very well indeed, with Eisenhower in the White House and themselves in control of Congress and of so many of the state capitals. They may, in other words, regard the present division of powers between the two parties as not at all unsatisfactory.

Europeans Find Art Collections In U.S. Better Than Expected

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
ANTHONY BLUNT, British Art Museum director, at City Art Museum. Painting is Derain's 'At the Suresnes Ball.'

British Visitor Impressed by Their 'Incomparable Richness'—Praises City Art Museum.

Europeans are well aware that the United States has "incredibly good stuff" in art museums and private collections, but on visiting this country they find it even better than they thought, Anthony Blunt, director of the Courtauld Institute of the University of London, said here today.

Blunt said he had been impressed by what he described as the "incomparable richness" of American collections, particularly in contemporary French art. He is professor of the history of art at the University of London.

By contemporary French, he said he meant works done in the last 80 years, from the post-Impressionists onward. He said the United States was acquiring so many of the best modern paintings that anybody wanting to make a thorough study of certain major artists had to come to this country.

That is true to a greater or lesser degree, he said, of Renoir, Degas, Cezanne, Matisse and even of Picasso.

Blunt is surveyor of the royal collections in England. His post charges him with responsibility for looking after Queen Elizabeth's paintings. He visits occasionally at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle and Hampton Court to see how things are getting along.

Speaking of the growth of private collections of art in large American cities, Blunt said New York, Chicago and St. Louis rated special mention. He visited several homes here to look at such collections.

Blunt termed it fortunate that the structure of the United States encourages private owners of valuable objects of art to turn them over, eventually, to museums. He discussed this point with Charles Nagel, director of City Art Museum.

A graduate of Trinity College, Cambridge, Blunt has specialized in French art in the period after the sixteenth century. He has written extensively on art. The Courtauld Institute was established by Samuel Courtauld, wealthy textile manufacturer who died in 1948.

Blunt was to leave St. Louis today for Kansas City and San Francisco. He arrived in this country early in February for a lecture tour. At City Art Museum, he praised the quality of the collection and said it was apparent the museum's directors knew what they wanted.

"Obviously," he said, "what you have was not simply accumulated at random."

Funeral services for Frank A. Wesley, an attorney and Republican committeeman of the Seventh Ward for 12 years, will be at 9 a.m. Monday at St. John Nepomuk Catholic Church, 1629 South Eleventh street. Burial will be in Resurrection Cemetery.

He resigned as committeeman last year but remained chairman of the Third Congressional District of the Republican committee. Mr. Wesley was a delegate to the constitutional convention which drafted the 1945 Missouri constitution, and served as chairman of the convention's Committee on Labor.

In 1945, he was appointed by former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann to the Board of Merchants' and Manufacturers' Tax Equalization to review and adjust taxes levied by a former vice president of the Savings and Loan Association of Missouri and former grand knight of the Laclede Council of Knights of Columbus.

CARDINAL GLENNON HOSPITAL SUNDAY

April 15 Proclaimed by Mayor as That Occasion—Dedication Then.

A proclamation designating April 15 as "Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital Sunday" has been signed by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, it was announced yesterday.

The Mayor in the proclamation officially welcomed visitors in St. Louis that day for dedication of the hospital for children at Grand boulevard and Park avenue.

Pointing out that "the late Cardinal Glennon served the city of St. Louis and Archdiocese of St. Louis for some 43 years as archbishop and also as civic leader," the Mayor asserted that "the magnificent progress of the St. Louis archdiocese under his administration and leadership in all aspects of cultural, educational, social and religious activity is reflected in national and international recognition of the city of St. Louis."

The proclamation also pointed out that the hospital had been made possible by contributions from "the citizens of St. Louis from all walks of life, every creed, race and social stratum."

Meanwhile, plans were being completed for welcoming Cardinal John D'Alton, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, who will speak at dedication ceremonies for the $6,000,000 institution.

Cardinal D'Alton, a personal friend of the late Cardinal Glennon, and his party will be met at Lambert-St. Louis Field at 4:35 p.m., Thursday, April 12, by a delegation headed by Auxiliary Bishop Leo C. Byrne, Msgr. James P. Murray, vicar-general of the archdiocese, and Msgr. Lloyd A. Sullivan, member of the hospital advisory board.

Dedication ceremonies will be at 4 p.m. the following Sunday and will be followed by a dinner at 7 p.m. at Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel in Cardinal D'Alton's honor.

LAG IN PSYCHOPATHIC CARE HERE DISCUSSED

Bliss Admissions 50 Pct. Under 1946—Relief Plan Blocked, Says Director.

Malcolm Bliss Psychopathic Hospital is now admitting less than 50 per cent of the patients it did 10 years ago "despite a recognized and pressing need in the community for more psychiatric services for the indigent mentally ill," Dr. George Ulett, medical director of the hospital, said yesterday.

Dr. Ulett, speaking before the fifth annual institute of the Mental Health Association of St. Louis at the Kingsway Hotel, said a plan to relieve the situation by employing Malcolm Bliss as an admitting center for all acute mentally ill indigent persons, both Negro and white, had been "blocked."

Under the plan, patients would have been admitted to Malcolm Bliss and held there for a period not exceeding 90 days, Dr. Ulett said. Probably half would be treated and returned to the community, while the remainder—those in need of long-term treatment and care—would be passed on to state mental hospitals.

The reason the plan could not be implemented, he added, was because the St. Louis State Hospital, which cares for almost all chronically mentally ill patients in the area, is 43 per cent overcrowded. Other state mental hospitals, although less overcrowded, were "said to be filled to capacity," Dr. Ulett said.

Dr. Ulett was critical of a lack of an overall plan for state mental hospitals in connection with the current state bond issue. "But rather, each hospital superintendent acting as a separate agent requesting what he thinks on the basis of past performance may reasonably be given to him rather than what he actually needs."

"You have heard the blame placed on the door of those individuals working in the state system of mental health, from hospital superintendents to the state director himself," Dr. Ulett said. "Such finger pointing is both unjustified and fruitless."

Sore-Arm Season in Full Bloom for Simmons, Baumann

Both Well-Tagged; Big Klu Busy 'B'

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 30 (AP)—It's not the Sniders and Campanellas and Musials or the Williams and Dobys that give a pitcher nightmares in the spring. That will come later. Right now, it's the threat of a sore arm that makes 'em toss and turn at night, whether they're veterans like CURT SIMMONS or bonus kids like FRANK BAUMANN.

The spring exhibitions have been no picnic for Simmons of the Philadelphia Phillies, who at 26 may be at the end of the line because of persistent arm trouble. Nor have they been reason for optimism for Baumann, who returned to the Red Sox from service with a painful throwing motion.

Simmons, one of the Whiz Kids who brought the Phils the National League flag in 1950, hasn't been the same since returning from the service in 1952. First he trimmed his foot with a power mower. Last spring, his arm went sore.

The young lefty was only 8-8 last season. This year may be decisive.

He's felt pretty good this spring, but he got that old feeling again yesterday, losing his control against the St. Louis Cardinals. He pitched three hitless innings, then was tagged for a run in the fourth and three in the fifth as the Cards won, 8-6.

Baumann, a St. Louisian who collected a reported $125,000 from the Red Sox before going into the service, didn't have even one good inning against the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday. Control was his trouble, too, walking four and giving three hits as the Bucs belted him for six runs in the sixth. They got two more off the lefty in the seventh, with Gene Freese smacking a leadoff homer.

Until Baumann came in, DAVE SISLER, another bonus pitcher from St. Louis, had partially checked the Pirates, who won their fourth straight, with three runs on four hits in five frames.

The Redlegs' big gun, TED KLUSZEWSKI, played with the 'B' team while nursing his pulled hip muscle and swatted a home run and single in an 8-7 defeat by Charleston of the American Association.

Sideline of the spring, Kluszewski did not attempt to run hard but was pleased with the steady improvement of his hip. The 240-pound slugger, who hit 47 homers last season, was feared lost to the Redlegs for their National League opener, but his current progress suggests he may be able to play.

The Milwaukee Braves announced the contract of pitcher GENE BEARDEN has been returned to San Francisco and San Francisco has assigned the contract to Sacramento. The former Cleveland Indians star, and one-time Browns hurler, had been working out with the Braves.

GENE CONLEY's ailing right shoulder was pronounced "much improved" after an examination. However, the gangling Milwaukee Braves pitcher will be left behind when the team breaks camp today at Bradenton, Fla.

Conley will receive daily treatments for at least a week but will not be permitted to throw a baseball during that time. Then if he gets another "okay" he will rejoin the team.

Track Meet for Girls Planned Here April 14

Girls participating in the track clinics at the Maplewood-Richmond Heights High field will compete in a practice meet April 14, Mrs. Shirley Theodore, Ozark A.A.U. women's track chairman, announced today.

The second clinic, open to all girls interested in track, is scheduled tomorrow from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon at Maplewood High. The program will begin with the showing of movies of the 1956 Olympics in which Miss Helen Stephens and Mrs. Harriet Bland Green, two other instructors, raced. Following the films, running techniques will be demonstrated on the track.

The meet at Maplewood April 14 (registration at 9 a.m.) will include two 50-yard dashes, two 75-yard dashes, 300-yard relay, discus, shotput, high jump and standing broad jump. Girls unable to attend the clinics are invited to compete in the practice meet as well as others that will be scheduled later.

The girls will be divided into three teams, with Miss Stephens, Mrs. Bland and Mrs. Theodore each in charge of one squad. Ribbons will be awarded for five places. Each girl will be limited to three events. Miss Wanda Weigrovec of St. Louis, National outdoor shotput champion, may be in charge of a fourth team.

Fred Moseley, Maplewood athletic director, will be on hand Sunday, April 8, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Maplewood track, to assist any girls wishing to take extra practice.

The clinic directors are hopeful that standout prospects will be encouraged to prepare for national meets and the 1960 Olympics.

Gayle Talbot, A.P.

Sports Writer, Dies
TAMPA, Fla., March 30 (AP)—Gayle Talbot, Associated press newsman and sports columnist, died last night. He was 54 years old.

Death came as the result of a heart attack. Talbot, who began writing the "Sport Roundup" in 1952 after 24 years with the Associated Press, was here on a semi-vacation following an earlier attack last August.

He had thought, however, that he was recovering satisfactorily. The fatal attack came in the lobby of a Tampa hotel last night shortly after he had left his room for dinner. He was chatting with friends when he was stricken and died en route to a hospital.

He is survived by his widow, the former Ruth Reavy of London, England, and two daughters, Brenda, 16, and Margaret, 14.

Breen Swims to New Mark for 1500 Meters

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 30 (INS)—George Breen, 20-year-old senior who never had swum competitively before entering Cortland (N.Y.) State Teachers College, set a new world record for 1500 meters last night.

The Olympic hopeful from Buffalo, N.Y., chopped a fantastic 13.1 seconds off the former world mark of 18m. 19s. in winning the opening event of the thirty-third annual N.C.A.A. swimming championships.

Breen's time of 18m. 59s. in the 50-meter pool of Yale University's Payne Whitney Gymnasium topped the old standard set by Hironoshin Furuhashi of Japan seven years ago in Los Angeles.

Breen, the first American to hold this record, attempts to become a double winner tonight when he competes in the 2200-yard free style. He's also entered in the 440-yard free style, which closes out the three-day meet tomorrow.

Also slated for tonight are the 50-yard free style, 200-yard backstroke, 200-yard butterfly, one-meter dive and 400-yard free style relay.

Breen was almost without competition as he lapped the field to finish 400 meters ahead of runner-up Peter Duncan. The South African, swimming for Oklahoma, was timed in 19m. 43.3s.

Tetsuo Okamoto, a Japanese swimmer from Brazil, finished third for Texas A. & M. in 19m. 55.3s.

Yale, co-favored with Ohio State for team honors, picked up six points by claiming fourth, fifth and sixth places. Ohio State finished no better than eighth in the 16-man event.

Cairo Coach Quits.

CAIRO, Ill., March 30 (AP)—Jim Redden has resigned as Cairo High School basketball coach, effective June 1. Cairo won only 8 of its 23 games the past season. Redden's first year as coach.

Warriors Win Eastern Final In N.B.A. Play

PHILADELPHIA, March 30 (UPI)—The Philadelphia Warriors pulled out to an 11-point lead early in the last period to defeat Syracuse, 109-104, and win the Eastern Division playoffs of the National Basketball Association last night.

The Warriors will meet Fort Wayne, winner of the Western Division playoff, in a best-of-seven series for the league championship. The first game will be played at Convention Hall here tomorrow afternoon. (The game will be televised by KSD-TV.)

The Warriors entered the final period leading, 78-73, and moved to an 88-77 edge with 8:19 left to play. But the Nationals refused to quit and came within three points on two occasions, the last time at 97-94 with three and a half minutes remaining.

Neil Johnston, who saved the Warriors in the stretch drive with timely baskets, then came through with 3.05 left with a field goal to ease the pressure. The Warriors boosted their margin back to eight points at 103-95 with 2:09 to play and coasted to victory before 7,587 fans.

Syracuse had trailed most of the second half because of the deadly sniping of Philadelphia's Paul Arizin, who tossed in 35 points, 23 of them in the first half. The Nats were forced to wage an uphill battle most of the way, but never gave up as Dolph Schayes and Dick Farley did most of the scoring.

Substitute Jim Tucker did an outstanding job of guarding Johnston until the closing minutes. The big Warriors' center finished with 25 points. Schayes topped the Syracuse scoring with 23 points on nine field goals and 10 or 11 free throws. George King trailed him with 17 for the Nats.

The box score:

Dogs to Help Catch Waterfowl for Banding

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The Fish and Wildlife Service announced today that dogs—trained retrievers—will be used to help catch waterfowl for banding this summer in Canada and the northern United States prairies. The fowl are released after being marked with leg bands which help the service study breeding and migration habits.

Director John L. Farley said, "Experimental use of dogs has proven that they are more economical than other techniques for capturing immature birds."

The dogs will be used primarily on young mallards, because of the tendency of that bird to leave the water when frightened and scurry to any available brush cover. Other types of fowl are trapped by use of nets.

About 50 persons will take part in the banding. Usually between 27,000 and 30,000 birds are banded each year.

NEW YORK, March 30 (UPI)—Hap Perry of San Francisco and Bill Ridley of Illinois will join the college all-stars for their coast-to-coast basketball tour with the Harlem Globetrotters. The tour opens at Madison Square Garden Saturday.

Fireman Suffers Facial Burns—Blaze Believed Incendiary

Fire thought to have been of incendiary origin today caused damage estimated at $10,000 at a storage warehouse of the City Products Corp. at 6801 Hoffman avenue.

Fireman David Steger, 5847 South Kingshighway, a member of Engine Co. No. 35, was taken to City Hospital for treatment of facial burns. Four alarms were sounded before the flames were brought under control.

A former ice storage plant, the 50-foot-high, windowless brick structure contained about 2,500 cattle hides in the process of curing. The flames, which were confined to a sawdust-filled space between a false ceiling and the roof, did no damage to the hides but water damage was put at about $1000 by Chief Hugh Lyon.

Because of reports that neighborhood children had been seen on the roof at frequent intervals, the police arson squad was investigating to determine whether the fire could have been started by some of them.

Seven firemen were on ladders or on a fire escape when a crack in the wall prompted Chief Lyon to call the men down and attack the fire with turret-mounted hoses that sent streams of water high onto the blazing roof. Heavy smoke attracted many spectators.

NEW ARMY RESERVE CENTER FOR NORTH ST. LOUIS UNITS

Training at the new Army Reserve Training Center No. 2, 3909 Kennerly avenue, will begin next week. Col. Robert H. Conk, chief of the Missouri Military District, announced today. Units formerly located at 1409 Washington avenue will move to the new center.

Army Reserve Training Center No. 1 was opened at 4350 South Kingshighway in August 1953 to serve Army Reservists in the South St. Louis area. Training Center No. 2 will be for Reserve units in the North St. Louis area.

Colonel Conk said that plans are being made for a third 1000-man training center to be located on the ninth floor of the St. Louis Area Support Center Building (Mart Building) at Twelfth and Spruce streets. He said the need for the third center has become apparent as more and more young men between the ages of 17 and 18½ have volunteered for the six-month active duty training program.

OWNERS WARNED TO CONFINE DOGS IN RICHMOND HEIGHTS

A warning to dog-owners in Richmond Heights to obey an ordinance requiring dogs to be confined was issued today by Richmond Heights City Clerk A. Benoit Riley.

An emergency declaration also doubled the number of hours dog-catchers are on the streets, from 16 to 32 hours a week. There have been no rabies cases as yet in Richmond Heights.

A dog caught by the municipal dog-catcher can be redeemed for a $2 pound fee, plus a fine if a city judge chooses to impose it. An inoculation clinic for anti-rabies shots will be held May 7 in the city hall.

HEADS CURRICULUM GROUP

He was elected at a conference in New York City in which 3000 school and college curriculum leaders participated.

SYMINGTON PUT ON SENATE FARM, FORESTRY GROUP

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 30—Senator Stuart Symington (Dem., Missouri), yesterday was appointed a member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry by the Senate Steering Committee. He will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem., New Mexico), who left the Agriculture Committee to become a member of the Senate Finance Committee.

Announcing the selection, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate majority leader, said that Symington was named because one of his chief interests "has been in the farmers of the country and in seeing that the farmers get a fair share of the income."

PRINCE ALFONSO OF SPAIN KILLS SELF ACCIDENTALLY

ESTORIL, Portugal, March 30 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Prince Alfonso of Bourbon, younger son of the pretender to the Spanish throne, was killed last night when a pistol he was cleaning discharged accidentally.

An announcement from the royal house of Bourbon said the bullet struck the young prince in the forehead and he died within minutes.

The accident occurred at the residence here of Alfonso's father, Don Juan, son of the late King Alfonso XIII and head of the Spanish Bourbon house. The prince and his family had returned only a short time before from Holy Thursday services.

Alfonso's older brother, Prince Juan Carlos, had the support of Gen. Francisco Franco in a move to return a monarch to the Spanish throne.

CONVICTED DRIVER PAROLED SO HE CAN SELL PRETZELS

Hughie Edward Fortner, a pretzel salesman, 1311 South Broadway, was paroled by Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh yesterday from the City Workhouse where he was serving a year's sentence on two convictions of leaving the scene of accidents in which pedestrians were injured.

He pleaded guilty to both charges and had served about five months of his sentence when he was paroled. Judge Walsh said, so that he could sell pretzels during the spring season.

Fortner was first convicted of leaving the scene after his machine struck and injured Fred Burke of Sullivan, Mo., at North Broadway near Cole street, Nov. 13, 1954. His second conviction was for striking and injuring Randle Ross, 2849 Bernard avenue, South Broadway near Montana street, last June 6. He received a year's sentence in each case to run concurrently.

YAFI CONFIRMED AS LEBANON PREMIER BY PARLIAMENT

BEIRUT, Lebanon, March 30 (UPI)—The Lebanon Parliament voted 25 to 15 last night to confirm Abdallah Yafi as the new Premier of the Middle Eastern republic.

Yafi and his new cabinet, formed March 20, replace the former left-wing government of Premier Rashid Karame. The Karame government resigned March 16 after bitter opposition to its failure to increase subsidies to private schools.

Yafi has headed several previous governments.

has passed to the NSC. But when a principle policy-making body, it never occurred to anyone to suggest that its policy decisions were not a fit subject for public discussion. They were discussed freely and heatedly, inside the government and out, in accord with the traditional American system.

Almost without anybody noticing, the NSC system, of secret decisions secretly arrived at, has been replacing the traditional system. Obviously there is an area of the government's policy-making process which is properly secret. But the NSC system goes much further than that. It is a system in which the government's policy on the great central issues is regarded as none of the public's business and, increasingly, none of Congress's business either.

Surely the NSC system explains at least in part the queer public apathy which has greeted the many authoritative warnings that the world balance of power is shifting rapidly in favor of the Soviets.

What to do about this sort of challenge to our national security, is, according to the NSC system, not a fit subject for public discussion. So the public can hardly be expected to get very excited about it.

Colonel Conk said that plans are being made for a third 1000-man training center to be located on the ninth floor of the St. Louis Area Support Center Building (Mart Building) at Twelfth and Spruce streets. He said the need for the third center has become apparent as more and more young men between the ages of 17 and 18½ have volunteered for the six-month active duty training program.

A warning to dog-owners in Richmond Heights to obey an ordinance requiring dogs to be confined was issued today by Richmond Heights City Clerk A. Benoit Riley.

An emergency declaration also doubled the number of hours dog-catchers are on the streets, from 16 to 32 hours a week. There have been no rabies cases as yet in Richmond Heights.

A dog caught by the municipal dog-catcher can be redeemed for a $2 pound fee, plus a fine if a city judge chooses to impose it. An inoculation clinic for anti-rabies shots will be held May 7 in the city hall.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 30—Senator Stuart Symington (Dem., Missouri), yesterday was appointed a member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry by the Senate Steering Committee. He will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem., New Mexico), who left the Agriculture Committee to become a member of the Senate Finance Committee.

Announcing the selection, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate majority leader, said that Symington was named because one of his chief interests "has been in the farmers of the country and in seeing that the farmers get a fair share of the income."

PRINCE ALFONSO OF SPAIN KILLS SELF ACCIDENTALLY

ESTORIL, Portugal, March 30 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Prince Alfonso of Bourbon, younger son of the pretender to the Spanish throne, was killed last night when a pistol he was cleaning discharged accidentally.

An announcement from the royal house of Bourbon said the bullet struck the young prince in the forehead and he died within minutes.

The accident occurred at the residence here of Alfonso's father, Don Juan, son of the late King Alfonso XIII and head of the Spanish Bourbon house. The prince and his family had returned only a short time before from Holy Thursday services.

CONVICTED DRIVER PAROLED SO HE CAN SELL PRETZELS

Hughie Edward Fortner, a pretzel salesman, 1311 South Broadway, was paroled by Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh yesterday from the City Workhouse where he was serving a year's sentence on two convictions of leaving the scene of accidents in which pedestrians were injured.

He pleaded guilty to both charges and had served about five months of his sentence when he was paroled. Judge Walsh said, so that he could sell pretzels during the spring season.

Fortner was first convicted of leaving the scene after his machine struck and injured Fred Burke of Sullivan, Mo., at North Broadway near Cole street, Nov. 13, 1954. His second conviction was for striking and injuring Randle Ross, 2849 Bernard avenue, South Broadway near Montana street, last June 6. He received a year's sentence in each case to run concurrently.

YAFI CONFIRMED AS LEBANON PREMIER BY PARLIAMENT

BEIRUT, Lebanon, March 30 (UPI)—The Lebanon Parliament voted 25 to 15 last night to confirm Abdallah Yafi as the new Premier of the Middle Eastern republic.

Yafi and his new cabinet, formed March 20, replace the former left-wing government of Premier Rashid Karame. The Karame government resigned March 16 after bitter opposition to its failure to increase subsidies to private schools.

Yafi has headed several previous governments.

has passed to the NSC. But when a principle policy-making body, it never occurred to anyone to suggest that its policy decisions were not a fit subject for public discussion. They were discussed freely and heatedly, inside the government and out, in accord with the traditional American system.

Almost without anybody noticing, the NSC system, of secret decisions secretly arrived at, has been replacing the traditional system. Obviously there is an area of the government's policy-making process which is properly secret. But the NSC system goes much further than that. It is a system in which the government's policy on the great central issues is regarded as none of the public's business and, increasingly, none of Congress's business either.

Surely the NSC system explains at least in part the queer public apathy which has greeted the many authoritative warnings that the world balance of power is shifting rapidly in favor of the Soviets.

What to do about this sort of challenge to our national security, is, according to the NSC system, not a fit subject for public discussion. So the public can hardly be expected to get very excited about it.

AIRMAN CONVICTED IN ROBBERY TRIAL

Eugene E. Woodward, a central figure in a controversy last November over civil rights of persons accused of crimes, was convicted of assault with intent to rob yesterday by a jury in the court of Circuit Judge Francis E. Williams. The jury fixed his punishment at six months in the workhouse.

Woodward and Eugene Kmetz, airmen stationed at Scott Air Force Base, were released from jail in November on habeas corpus proceedings, after they had been held more than two months waiting for the matter to be presented to the grand jury.

They had been re-arrested after being released at a preliminary hearing in the Court of Criminal Correction.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd was criticized by some legal judges and the Bar Association of St. Louis for holding the youths and other prisoners for long periods without instituting court proceedings against them. He explained at the time that he had no intention of violating their rights, but that he had been busy with the police pay-off investigation.

The robbery victim was Willard C. Ray, a plumber of 4342 Swan avenue. He was beaten and robbed of $10 last July 27, on North Kingshighway near West Pine-boulevard. He testified at the trial that Woodward was one of two men who tried to drag him into an automobile.

Four men were charged in the case. Jack G. Churchill was given a five-year prison term by a jury in January. Vernon G. Ridge pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years, and Kmetz is awaiting trial.

East German President Lame. BERLIN, March 30 (AP)—Wilhelm Pieck, 80-year-old President of Communist East Germany, has a knee injury which hinders his walking, it was announced today. Communist party boss Walter Ulbricht said this was the reason Pieck failed to give the closing speech at the party's third national conference.

HALL'S STRATEGY IS SAME: SELLING OF EISENHOWER

best friend of the Democrats and the worst enemy the Republicans have."

Erna Taft Benson is Secretary of Agriculture. Dr. George Gallup's polls portray Mr. Eisenhower as invincible.

Hall has sent out his own scouts to check this thinking. One is Victor Johnston, a Minnesota of long experience in National Committee's agricultural expert, Speed Nelson of South Dakota. They have a heavy responsibility for Washington generally inclines to Hall's version of Mr. Eisenhower's invulnerability.

ONE PAPER'S VIEW

The Wall Street Journal—no New Deal organ—is the latest to suggest the equanimity with which G.O.P. headquarters views the coming election. Under date of Blue Earth, Minn., its reporter confirms the farm revolt and attacks the theory that farmers will switch from Republican to Democratic Congressmen and gripe about Secretary Benson but remain strongly devoted to Mr. Eisenhower.

Almost the opposite seems to be the case, according to the Journal reporter. He says the switch parties this fall show little inclination to blame the Congressman, most of whom are included in the Republican farm state rebels against the Eisenhower-Benson policy.

Democratic headquarters here says that it has had many letters attributing Adlai Stevenson's Minnesota primary defeat to the fact that Republicans switched over to Senator Estes Kefauver to embarrass Gov. Orville L. Freeman and Senator Huber H. Humphrey, Stevenson sponsors. All its mail predicts the state will go Democratic this fall.

GROUNDING JETS' COST TO NATION MAY BE REDUCED

Navy Secretary Says 'Unreliable' Engines Will Be Considered at Repricing Hearing.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The $116,203,000 cost to the Government of 58 McDonnell Aircraft Corp. F3H-1 Demon airplanes that failed to meet performance requirements may be reduced when repricing negotiations take place.

This was indicated by Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas in a statement submitted to the House Appropriations Committee recently and made public last night.

Thomas said the McDonnell airplanes cost $80,644,000 and the engines manufactured by the Westinghouse Co. cost $22,237,000. Termination costs, he said, were $13,302,000.

Under the terms of the contract, Thomas said, "certain of these engines, those delivered in calendar year 1955, are subject to repricing. Consideration will be given to this matter in negotiations to be conducted during the second quarter of this year."

"Apart from the engine problem in connection with the F3H-1 aircraft," Thomas went on, "tests have shown that there were deficiencies in the aircraft which deficiencies were not the reason for discontinuing production. McDonnell has been notified of these deficiencies and the matter will be taken into account at the time of repricing pursuant to the contract terms."

Early next year, Thomas said, repricing is expected to occur.

Thomas testified in private session last Feb. 5. His cost statement was prepared for the record at the request of a committee member and submitted at a later date.

In testimony, Thomas said there were 58 of the F3H-1 airplanes but that "47 finally ended up there." He apparently meant the planes were assigned to training units for use in training mechanics and ground crews. At another point he said 26 planes were being used for this purpose.

Thomas said the manufacturer got the full contract price for the production of the planes "because it was not his fault; it was the specifications of the engines that caused trouble."

The engines went through various development phases, Thomas said, "but just never developed the estimated thrust (power)."

"Wouldn't Develop Thrust." "Some of the engines were used in the F3H-1," Thomas continued. "It was not that the engine would not fly the airplane, but it would not develop the thrust that was necessary for the proper performance of the airplane."

"That goes back purely to one thing only," Thomas said at another point, "and that was the letting of definite production contracts under the emergency of Korea, built around a new engine that did not materialize. That goes back to the urgency of Korea in 1951. It was bad procurement, there is no question about that, but that was five years ago."

The Navy has a new procedure that should prevent the repetition of such mistakes, Thomas said.

The affair was investigated by Senate and House committees. A Senate committee paid the cost of the program at $300,000, a figure that included various development costs. A House committee estimated the cost at $200,000. Thomas previously estimated $134,000,000 as the cost.

The McDonnell plant is at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

FRANCE TO KEEP SOME TROOPS IN SOUTH VIET NAM

PARIS, March 30 (AP)—France and anti-Communist South Viet Nam are about to sign a treaty providing continued stationing of some French troops on the territory of the former colony, French officials said today.

They said the soldiers would protect property belonging to both France and Viet Nam and help train the Viet Nam army. Some French businessmen remain in South Viet Nam.

The French heretofore have been eager to get their remaining 20,000 troops out of the country to reinforce their strength in rebellious North Africa. Now French officials say that in recent months the United States has shown interest in having some French troops kept in South Viet Nam.

Under the armistice agreement, the last French troops were to leave by April 15.

TITOISTS ALWAYS KNEW HUNGARIAN RED WAS FRAMED

BELGRADE, March 30 (AP)—Yugoslav spokesmen said today Hungary's action restoring the reputation of Lasko Rajk was a "natural and inevitable consequence of the development of events."

Rajk, a former foreign minister, was hanged by Communist Hungary as a convicted Titoist in 1949.

The spokesman told a news conference Yugoslavia always viewed Rajk's trial was "a frameup based on forgeries and directed against Yugoslavia."

Asked if the new Hungarian action will influence Yugoslav-Hungarian relations, the spokesman said: "The development of relations among countries is a question which hinges on many things."

Yugoslavia and Russia today initiated an agreement on cultural co-operation which provides for a mutual exchange of scientists, cultural workers and students.

WABASH $23.60 NET A SHARE FOR 1955 ITS HIGHEST EVER

Wabash Railroad Co. announced net earnings for 1955 of $23.60 a share, highest in its history, in a report to stockholders made public today.

Gross revenues of $118,564,821 represented a 7.86 per cent increase from 1954, while operating expenses rose only 2.89 per cent as a result of modernization of the transportation plant in recent years.

Arthur K. Atkinson, president, told the stockholders that wage increases, higher federal income taxes resulting from less favorable tax deductions and possibly a slightly lower volume of traffic might result in lower net income for 1956, even with the recently granted freight rate increase.

BUSINESS WORLD

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Total dollar volume of retail trade this week moderately exceeded that in the comparable week a year ago when Easter was later, Dun & Bradstreet reported. Easter promotions encouraged the purchase of women's spring and summer apparel. Automobile sales were reported to be close to volume in the preceding week but below that of a year ago. The total dollar volume of retail trade in the week ended Wednesday averaged 2 to 6 per cent higher than a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet estimated.

Illinois Terminal Railroad Co. reported February net income of $28,517 on operating revenues of $1,026,212. This compares with net of $4183 and operating revenues of $878,855 in February 1955. For the first two months of the current year net was $40,148 and operating revenues $2,061,359, against a deficit of $7701 and operating revenues of $1,737,602 in the corresponding period last year.

Illinois Power Co. declared the regular quarterly dividend of 65 cents a common share payable May 1 to stock of record April 10.

Bituminous production increased to 9,220,000 tons in the week ended March 17 to approximately 9,910,000 tons in the period ended March 24, the National Coal Association estimated. Output Jan. 1 through March 24 was about 119,335,000 tons against 103,010,000 tons a year ago, the association said.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. reported today for 1955 consolidated net income of $6,025,039, equal to $2.28 a share compared with $9,044,524, or $3.04 a share in the preceding year.

Money in circulation decreased $15,000,000 in week ended Wednesday, the Federal Reserve Board said. Gold stocks increased $2,000,000.

John N. Marshall, president and board chairman of Granite City Steel Co., told the New York Society of Security Analysts the company's first quarter sales and profits indicated a record high. The full year 1955 earnings were $12,610,820, equal to $6.05 a common share on net sales of $116,293,657, both set records.

Motor vehicle output this week will total 151,385 units, Ward's Automotive Reports said. The agency noted that Ford and Chrysler output moved upward while General Motors' assemblies dipped because of the closing down for the Good Friday observance of seven Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac branch assembly plants. Ward's counted 127,780 cars and 23,605 trucks in this week's domestic output. Last week 131,287 cars and 23,690 trucks were built. In the comparable 1955 week 177,293 cars and 28,967 trucks were assembled.

National City Lines, Inc. and wholly owned subsidiaries reported consolidated net income of $3,848,207, equal to $2.74 a common share, for 1955 compared with $3,896,246, equal to $2.76 a common share, in 1954. St. Louis Public Service Co. is an affiliate of National City Lines.

Local bank clearings for March 30 were $67,800,000 compared with $56,000,000 a year ago.

U.S. Economy Today MAN ON THE GO IS EARLY THIS YEAR
By Sam Dawson

AMERICANS are starting their travels earlier this year. Tourist agencies report booking more than the usual number for the Holy Week observances in Italy, Spain and Portugal. A sizable number of Americans have chosen Japan for the March-April flower season. Florida reports a record number there for the Passover and Easter holidays.

Record throngs are expected to visit other lands this year. European hotels, transoceanic airlines and ships report earlier bookings than usual. Domestic airlines report reservations for Easter holiday flights were made weeks and even months ago.

Estimates of the number who will go to Europe in quest of culture or pleasure run as high as 550,000, and of the total who will make trips outside the United States as high as 2,000,000. They are expected to spend more than one and one-half billion dollars.

WHILE EUROPE GETS MOST OF THE TOURIST business this hemisphere, other lands are drawing more each year. Travel in the Pacific was up 30 per cent last year. The passport division of the State Department reports 30,000 Americans went to Japan last year, 25,000 to Australia, New Zealand and South Pacific islands. Americans visiting India have numbered as high as 39,000 in a year and this may be topped in coming months because of the celebration there of the 2500th anniversary of the enlightenment of Buddha.

THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE, IN A STUDY of American tourist folkways in 1954, puts their average expenditure on a European trip at $1467, including the cost of crossing the Atlantic. It notes that in the previous five years the average rose about 2 per cent each year. American Express, predicting a 15 per cent gain this year in the number to visit Europe, reports advance hotel bookings in various European cities are 10 to 100 per cent higher than at this time last year. It says hotel and restaurant prices are up from 2 to 20 per cent. The American Automobile Association estimates that from 100,000 to 125,000 Americans will see at least part of Europe by auto.

THE INTERNATIONAL AIR TRANSPORT ASSOCIATION says the lines crossing the Atlantic plan to have 20 per cent more passenger seats available this summer, have added some new cities to their routes, as well as new equipment and larger helicopters for short hops on the continent. An I.A.T.A. official, noting that trans-Atlantic travel has doubled in five years, predicts that in the summer of 1960 as many as 1,500,000 Americans may crowd into the old continents.

THE EUROPEAN TRAVEL COMMISSION IN THE United States reports 73 surface ships on the trans-Atlantic run last summer, compared with 50 in 1950, and looks for some additional ones as the season's peak approaches. Last June for the first time more vacationists flew to Europe than went by sea. The I.A.T.A. man, incidentally, has a bright idea you might well mull over while doing your income tax return. He thinks that just as sums spent on education are often deductible, a certain amount spent on foreign travel (say $300) should be made free of income tax. Travel, he says, is not only broadening, it adds the cause of peace by helping ordinary men to know their neighbors.

On-Cuff Buying Rose 1½ Times As Fast as Long-Term Savings

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Americans went into hock last year more than one-and-one-half times as fast as they added to their long-term savings, the Institute of Life Insurance said today. During the record buying spree of 1955, the institute said, the American people added the equivalent of $1.63 to their personal debts for every dollar of increase in savings accounts, government bonds and life insurance.

The institute said total personal debt—including installment credit and mortgage debt—jumped by more than 20 billion dollars, by far the biggest yearly increase of its kind on record.

"At the same time," the institute added, "accumulated long-term savings of individuals in life insurance, savings accounts, savings and loan associations and current redemption value of United States savings bonds owned by individuals, but not including home owners' equities, increased by approximately 12½ billions. This fell eight billion dollars short of matching the net amount that the people had expanded their borrowings, primarily to buy homes and automobiles."

At the end of 1955, the institute noted, Americans owed 89 billion dollars on their homes, or five times more than the total home mortgage debt outstanding at the end of 1945. In the same decade, consumer debt showed a six-fold increase, totaling more than 36 billion dollars at the end of last year.

The institute said people should be encouraged to save more so that lending institutions will have enough capital to meet the needs of the nation's expanding economy.

FULTON BAG BREAKS OFF NEGOTIATIONS FOR ITS SALE

ATLANTA, March 30—Officials of Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills here, which has branch operations in St. Louis, announced today that negotiations with Bellanca Aircraft Corp. have been "completely broken off" and Fulton Bag "was not sold today."

Negotiations between Fulton Bag and Bellanca had been going on for some time. Fred C. Barnett of St. Louis, a vice president of the company, and Jason N. Elas of New Orleans, another official of Fulton Bag, said the board of directors had adjourned for "an indefinite period."

Fulton Bag has plants and offices in various cities.

IN 1955 more than 3 million new American citizens were born in hospitals—nearly 99% of all births.

These mid-century babies had a better chance of survival because of advances in care available in our modern hospitals.

Last year, 21,237 maternity cases represented one out of every 5 Blue Cross admissions. A total of $2,000,454 was paid for hospital care of Blue Cross mothers and babies and $435,500 was paid by Blue Shield for obstetrical service.

Hospital care, made widely available by Blue Cross, and obstetrical service through Blue Shield, have been major factors in making childbirth safer and easier for both mother and child.

TEARS AT RAIL CROSSING

Overcome with grief, Clayton Ferrari kneels in tears near his father who was injured in railway grade crossing at Battle Creek, Mich., Wednesday night. The elder Ferrari was pushing his son's automobile when his own machine stalled on the tracks. He failed to notice the approaching New York Central train until it was too late to escape.

READY FOR SLEEP

A victim of growing pains at the tender age of 4 months, Michael Gaustad presents relaxed countenance to camera after his difficulties were overcome at Minneapolis yesterday. The child cried so incessantly that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gaustad, were reduced almost to tears themselves before they realized his baby ring was too tight. Tears stopped when the ring (lower right) was cut and removed.

SNOW BLANKET ON SIRUP HARVEST

Sap buckets almost hidden by deep snow are among the 2500 put out early this month by Maurice Porter on the maples on his farm near Langdon, N. H. Three heavy snowfalls followed in short order and the buckets now hang isolated and still empty. Farm authorities said yesterday that even with warm temperatures in the next 10 days about 75 per cent of the annual maple sirup yield would be lost.

MILK BLOCKADE

Milk transport trucks blocked on roadside near Imlay City, Mich., yesterday after dairy farmers in the area moved to back up their demands for a higher share of the milk dollar. Patrolling the highways, striking farmers persuaded drivers of 17 trucks to pull up at processing plant of milk producers' association. Picketing action poses threat to supplies of fresh milk for Detroit.

Some Superb Acting In a Low-Key Drama

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, March 30.

"JOEY" by Louis Peterson on Goodyear Playhouse the other night is a good illustration of both the strength and the weakness of a type of television drama that is becoming increasingly frequent. It is what I like to think of as inarticulate drama in which ordinary folk suffer their ordinary dreams in prose of such extraordinary ordinariness that it has a sort of reverse impact.

KIM STANLEY

This particular drama was about a dishwasher so browbeaten by his father that he had come to accept the fact that he was a stupid no-account and that he always would be. That is, he accepted it until a girl—a girl who is a stripteaser who is resorting to dishwashing as a temporary respite from the police, she has rather more aggressive notions about life than the lad and, between bouts of dishwashing, succeeds in convincing him that feeding the pigeons—his favorite occupation—is a dim substitute for active enterprise. As the hour ends, he is about to embark on a career as a singer.

THIS IS ONE of those dramas that inch along from the commonplace to the obvious. Says the guy to the girl, as daring a line as the author permits himself: "You... you like me?" This is the order of the day: boys of low station who discover that girls like boys or vice versa. Aspiration is cast at the lowest level of human desire and when anyone achieves anything at all it is a moment of triumph. It is also generally the end of the play.

Peterson writes with great honesty and integrity but there is only a limited emotional satisfaction to this kind of drama. The real appeal, I guess, is to the sense of superiority it arouses in the mass audience, any one of whom could hardly avoid the conclusion that he could handle life much more capably than these two.

THIS PARTICULAR PRODUCTION was enlivened by superb performances by Kim Stanley as the stripteaser and an enormously promising newcomer named Anthony Perkins, the son of the late Osgood Perkins. This is, I think, the third TV play I've seen Perkins in and I have a suspicion that the movies will be beckoning him shortly. He's a man of Lincolnesque appearance with commanding eyes and a resilient voice. And he can act up a storm. I've seen him range from this sort of inarticulate drama to lyric and highly articulate Irish drama and he's very effective in both.

As for Miss Stanley, she hardly needs an introduction. I consider her one of the best actresses anywhere around. She can take a line like: "So it's you and the pigeons, huh?" and make it funny and touching and deeply revealing, all at once. She is—I can think of no better word—alive to such a degree that everything that touches her seems a matter of deep concern to the viewer.

Recently Miss Stanley starred in another TV drama, "Flight," on "Playwrights '56" and this too was a performance not easily forgotten. This was a tenuous, atmospheric piece about a girl in the Deep South who had been abandoned by her no-good fiancé. The contrast between the two roles—Miss Stanley dripping magnolia blossoms in the first and tough Broadwaywise in the other—was a very instructive essay in acting.

MAX LIEBMAN'S latest spectacular, "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl," was one of the most successful of his efforts for this year. Fortunately, he had enlisted the services of some of the most talented young working girls in and around the theater. My favorite sketch of the evening was one in which Nancy Walker supervised a group of girls giving a shower for a girl on the brink of wedlock. All the girls loathed the bride-to-be with remarkable vehemence and the sketch had a wonderfully feminine malice about it that you seldom see on the air.

There were other fetching young ladies around, too, notably Helen Gallagher, who contributed quite a lot of female electricity with a song and dance about breakfast in bed; Connie Russell, who belted "Ten Cents a Dance" over the left field wall; and Tammy Grimes, a newcomer I've never seen before, who was very funny in a sketch about a department store girl. There were some men about—Bert Lahr and Art Linkletter—but they were engulfed by the females.

Boy Stock Expert

By Charles Mercer

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP).

FRIENDS and associates of Leonard Ross back home in Tujunga, Calif., will be interested in knowing he's conducting himself with dignity during his New York sojourn, winning friends and influencing some people on their investments.

Tomorrow he returns to "Big Surprise" (on KSD-TV at 6:30 p.m.) where he's going for $20,000 in his effort to work to the big $100,000 question. His category is stocks and the Stock Exchange.

The other day he spent a while at the New York Stock Exchange, impressing officials with his wide ranging knowledge of investments and amazing employees with his ability to read ticker symbols for scores of stocks. Then he spent a while in the financial room of the New York Public Library where he's checking through 150 various volumes for obscure facts.

HIS SUGGESTIONS on what to buy and what to sell are so persuasive that it probably would be unfair to the market equilibrium to report them. But the most persuasive thing about him is that he is 10 years old and hasn't the slightest inclination to seek a career in high finance.

"It's simply an interest," he says, fixing you with kindly, intelligent brown eyes and swinging small feet that fail to touch the floor. "I've been interested in investments since I was 7. My father is a C.P.A. and has a few small investments. Listening to him talk, I became interested and began following the market."

If not high finance, what does he plan as a career some day?

"I'd like to go into politics," Leonard said. Under further questioning he continued, "I'm a Democrat... Let's say that under present circumstances I'm a Democrat... I'm for Stevenson."

HAVING SKIPPED three grades thus far, Leonard finds himself in upper seventh at the Verdugo Hills Junior High School. His favorite subject there is math, followed by social studies "at times." His greatest aversion is the gymnasium. He hopes to take his higher education at Harvard or Yale or Stanford.

Leonard's mother, Mrs. William Ross, a court stenographer, accompanied him to New York. His school principal said he was sure Leonard wouldn't have any trouble making up last school time. That's a smart principal who recognizes a smart pupil when he sees one.

Stories From the Life of Jesus

The Crucifixion on Calvary

Soldiers Force Jesus to Carry His Cross to Death

SIMON BENT TO HELP JESUS CARRY HIS CROSS. SIMON, ALONE, HELPED JESUS, WHEN ALL HIS FRIENDS HAD RUN AWAY.

By April Oursler Armstrong

THERE was no true dawn that Friday, only a pale yellow creeping into the east.

From the guardroom of Pilate's castle, Jesus descended the stairs.

At the bottom, the cross was waiting, a crude thing of blackened wood, smelling of creosote and tar, the centerpiece large as a small mast, and the horizontal bar of a long beam split in half, fixed with two iron clamps.

At the soldiers' orders, Jesus knelt. Part of the crossbar was hooked over his shoulder. He must stand with the weight of the cross on his back, and drag it himself to the place of execution. He was not alone in punishment. Two thieves carried their crosses in the same death march, strange company for One Who took nothing but gave all.

Suddenly, in a narrow part of the street, Jesus swayed, and fell, weak from the scourging, but the soldiers forced him on.

He was about to fall again, but the guards murmured. Without help this Man would never reach the hill of execution. But it was not for soldiers to carry a cross. Nearby stood a man named Simon, a pilgrim from Cyrene in Africa. Suddenly a guard snarled,

"You there! Carry that Man's cross!"

Simon bent to help Jesus carry his cross. He had done no crime. It was an aching nuisance to take such a load. But because of that half hour's toil, the world has never forgotten him. Simon, a stranger, and Simon alone, helped Jesus, when all his friends had run away.

Now the noise of the crowd took a different note. The city was awakening. News of what had happened flew along the domed rooftops. The women heard first, and came running to see if it were true.

THROUGH the gate Jesus passed into open country, within view of the gloomy hill. The women of Jerusalem surged into the road, elbowing aside the savage crew that followed the cross. Unafraid, these housewives, daughters, and widows, fought their way to the Master, weeping.

Jesus' face took new strength as He called: "Daughters of Jerusalem! Weep not over Me, but for yourselves and your children." With panting breath He warned of the misery and destruction that would come to the city, before long.

Then, exhausted, even with Simon's help, He fell. For the third time the soldiers drove Him to His feet. The end was at hand. He had only to carry the cross up that final stretch of hill.

Calvary, that hill! Golgotha, meaning the place of the skull. It was as the three prisoners stood together—Dysmas and Gestas, the two thieves—and Jesus.

High noon, and the sun shone brightly, but on the four edges of the world clouds gathered. The guards stretched Jesus on the cross. They hammered spikes through His palms to the crosspiece—then nailed His feet to the main piece. Then they hoisted the cross high.

There, Jesus was crucified between two thieves. The three gaunt crosses stood against the paling sky.

Over Jesus' head, at Pilate's orders, they nailed a sign in Latin, Greek, and Aramaic, the language of Jerusalem: "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews!"

On Calvary the crowd grew minute by minute. The soldiers were there, and the ruffians, noisy and careless. The women were there, faces pale with horror, and the men, eyes full of question. If the court, and Pilate, had condemned Him, why were they to challenge it? They dared not look on His face.

Jesus murmured: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Forgive them? All? Where were His friends? Where are you, Peter? Where is John, the well-beloved, now? And Judas! Judas is in the potter's field, after hanging from a tree.

And the others who are they? Why did you run away, James and Thomas and the rest of you? For your lives you ran, in the dark of Gethsemane. Why did you forsake Me? You were afraid. But the day comes when you will have such faith that fear will no longer matter.

"I THIRST," said Jesus. The soldiers grinned. They made Him a drink—a cup of wine mixed with myrrh and gall and heave. He would not drink it. His last cup on earth was the chalice of the Last Supper.

Below His cross the Roman guards threw dice for His robe. They had divided His garments among them. But that beautiful seamless robe they did not tear. They gambled for it, instead.

Then Jesus saw moving slowly to the cross three women—three Marys close at hand. Mary, His mother at the foot of the cross. And Mary, wife of Cleophas. His mother's sister, beside her. Mary of Magdalen lay prostrate on the earth.

And who stood beside His mother? John!

Jesus cried: "Woman, behold your Son!"

Turning to John, sweat glistening on His head, he said: "Behold your mother!"

And John would be like another son to Mary. But his love symbolized greater service, for Jesus had spoken to man kind, had showed all living the glory of her motherhood.

The sky was darkening, slowly. The high priests came to mock.

He saved others. Let Him save Himself if He be Christ. Save Yourself! Come down from the cross!

But some noticed that as the darkness deepened a light shone behind His head.

One thief, Gestas, took up the cry: "If You be the Christ, save Yourself—and us!"

But Dysmas, the other thief called back: "We are justly punished. But this Man has done no evil."

Then to the Master, Dysmas said, "Lord, remember me when You come into Your Kingdom."

Through the blood and sweat Jesus spoke in His old clear, strong voice:

"I say to you—this day you shall be with Me in Paradise."

The storm was gathering its darkness now. Thunder swelled over the heads of the people. And they began to fear.

It was close upon three o'clock, when Jesus spoke again: "My God, My God, why have You forsaken Me?"

Caiphas chuckled hoarsely. "Hear that, Lord Annas? First He says He is God—then He asks why He has forsaken Himself. That proves He's not God!"

Annas's voice was low, and sad. "Do you not know your Scriptures? The Twenty-Second Psalm, have you not read it? It begins with those words. And it tells what happened here today—every bit of it. King David wrote that psalm, predicting exactly this moment."

JESUS let them pour vinegar from a sponge down His parched throat. Then He spoke again:

"It is consummated."

And even Caiphas knew what that meant. Everything the prophets had said had been fulfilled. Jesus was in truth the Messiah!

Then Jesus spoke out softly, as Mary remembered Him speaking as a boy, falling off to sleep—softly, with surrender. "Father, into Your hands I commend My spirit."

And bowing His head, He died.

Strange things happened then. The earth trembled. Rocks crashed from the hillsides. Graves burst open. And the veil in the Temple ripped from top to bottom, although no man's hand touched it.

And the Roman Officer who had given the orders for His execution fell on his knees and gasped.

"Indeed this Man was the Son of God."

Secrets of Charm

Look at Yourself

IT'S probably true that no woman ever sees herself as others see her. But it's a good idea to try—not once in a blue moon, but frequently. Especially as the years fly by, it's all too easy to envision oneself as more nearly face and figure fault-free than is actually the case.

The surprise, once mirrored hard facts are faced, is usually that you no longer cast the shadow you did a few years ago. And this isn't necessarily because of weight you refused to believe existed. With or without it, change in posture may be changing your looks more than you know.

ONCE it's slackened to bad posture habits, the best proportioned figure loses trim lines and eventually loses its good proportions.

A head thrust forward loosens taut throat outline, makes way for crepe fullness under the chin. Drooping shoulders round the back, and the back that isn't straight begins a slump in the bustline and in the abdominal muscles.

Body alignment that's at fault in any way brings change in your appearance that's obvious to everyone else, whether or not it is to you.

NO MIRROR smaller than full length is critical enough, and better still is the triple full-length mirror arrangement that catches candid views from every angle. There's usually a door at home for the single mirror, and for the triple, there are always the dressing rooms of the dress shops.

Walk up to your reflection as you usually stand. Stand there as you usually stand. And be merciless. How do you look? Is your mental picture of yourself a true one, or are you the only one who can see it?

Just what perfect body alignment must be is explained in the booklet, "Your Posture"—yours for 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to Secrets of Charm at the Post-Dispatch.

6. What American statesman once wrote in a letter, "There never was a good war or a bad peace"?

Monotone Monotony

By Elizabeth Hillyer

IN THESE days of decorating to make rooms look larger than they are, textured fabrics and one-color patterns are valuable indeed. Look to them for help for the room that wears a single color lavishly.

It's the monotone effect that spreads the walls amazingly farther apart, but it often needs something special to make sure the room doesn't risk monotone monotony.

A plain fabric that has handsome and definite texture can hardly be called plain. The play of light against the varied weave makes it seem to be several shades of the same color—it certainly has a very different effect than a fabric that's flat. It offers gentle but interesting contrast to walls and smoother fabrics even when all three are in the same color.

In a slightly different way, the fabric that's printed in a simple design in one color on a background of a different shade of the same color does the same thing. It doesn't make a minute depart from that monotone color plan that makes the room look wonderfully larger, but it does make it more interesting.

Send today for Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet "What's Wrong With That Room?"—a quick

The New Films

By Myles Standish

A Great Alexander

ALTHOUGH Robert Rossen had some trouble in chewing all he bit off in trying to pack the life of Alexander of Macedonia into a two hour and 20 minute motion picture, he has been tremendously successful in "ALEXANDER THE GREAT," which opened today at LOEW'S STATE THEATER, in keeping the figure of Alexander always in perfect focus.

As magnificently played by Richard Burton, Alexander emerges vividly through the huge battle scenes that all but burst from the CinemaScope screen, the intrigue, the gorgeous costuming and splendor of this huge-scale film, and is studied as intimately as in a neo-realistic drama. The Alexander conceived by Producer-Director-Writer Rossen and made so real by Burton, believes himself a god, and acts very much like a man—hot-headed, impulsive, consumed and driven by a burning single-mindedness of purpose.

The life of Alexander was so full of natural drama that Writer Rossen's problem was only to shape and interpret it (such a natural is the character that one wonders why no movie was ever done on it before). Historians have differed widely on what made the mighty conqueror tick. Rossen has him motivated by father-jealousy, seeking to crush the image of his famous father, Philip (Fredric March), by outdoing him, and inspired by his tutor, Aristotle (Barry Jones), into an idea of uniting Greece and Asia. Whether Alexander's obsession with blending Greek and Persian blood and cultures (which caused his first rift with his Macedonian followers) was merely a practical device toward holding together a huge empire carved by a megalomaniac, or was backed by an profound philosophical ideas, Rossen doesn't attempt to show. But Barse (Claire Bloom) depicted as his one true love, is his apologist at first—the decadent and corrupt Persian setup is to be replaced by the vigorous and idealistic Greek culture for the good of everyone.

Rossen's scenes are finely written and pungently composed to make this one of the year's top pictures. Here is one spectacle where the dialogue matches the money spent. The acting, with the exception of a rather colorless Danielle Darrieux as Olympias, is all first-rate.

The assassination of Philip, and Alexander's summary (and so hasty as to be suspicious) murder of the assassin have stark, hot immediacy. Alexander's wordless throwing of the bloody dagger clanging to the feet of his mother, Olympias, is an eloquent, terrible gesture. His passion and wild grief as he plunges a javelin into his closest friend, Cleitus, in a drunken quarrel are memorable. So is the scene where Philip, played with a blunt cynicism by March, and already jealous of his rising son, staggers drunkenly on a mountain top mocking the echoes with his derisive cry of "Philip the Barbarian!"

The drama of Alexander didn't follow stage rules—instead of rising to a crescendo at the end, it had dulled that by too many shattering climaxes, and merely ran out. But Rossen overcomes that with a brilliant finish in which the dying conqueror, beseeched by his eager Companions to name his successor, gathers a last sardonic breath to leave his empire to "the strongest among you."

Rossen, who worked three years on the project and filmed the picture in Spain, had to skip many of Alexander's famous battles and sieges and to telescope the whole long Persian-Bactrian-Scythian-Indian campaign to get it in. The battles he shows are on a mighty scale—Chaeon, and Granica, topped by the awe-inspiring sight of the battle of Gaugamela where Alexander's intrepid 30,000 defeated the Persian army of a million, and which ranks with his victory at Issus as one of the most remarkable military feats of all time. Using thousands of Spanish soldiers as extras, Rossen gives you a pretty good idea of the tumult and confusion of ancient massed combat, and some breathless moments as the line of Persian scythed-armed chariots careens wildly into the Macedonian phalanx.

Rossen's few major historical distortions are for dramatic cohesion. Barse, widow of Mennon of Rhodes, is made Alexander's life-long love. His first wife, Roxana, daughter of a Bactrian mountain chieftain, is eliminated. Instead, a daughter of Darius, whom he later married in the mass Macedonian-Persian wedding at Susa, is given that name. His slaying of Cleitus is made the cause of his retreat from India, when actually the retreat occurred two years later because the Macedonians mutinied against going any further.

I think Alexander's military genius might have been better underscored by a succinct explanation of his tactics and a quick map tracing of the vast distances of his marches over 11 years.

Masterful Japanese Color

"SAMURAI" opening tonight at the SHADY OAK, is another extraordinary drama from Japan. A worthy successor to the art masterpieces, "Rashomon," "Ugetsu" and "Gate of Hell," this one recently won the Academy Award for best foreign film of the year.

As in "Gate of Hell," there is a lovely use of Eastern color, subtle (although not as delicate as in "Gate of Hell") and blended and composed as in a succession of Japanese prints. The film, based on legendary outlaw-warrior Miyamoto Musashi, whose exploits in fighting off hundreds of soldiers at a time would make Errol Flynn look like a sissy, is again based on the feudal wars, full of scenes of slaughter and rapine, with emotions of fear, hate and the like violently expressed, but always seeming realistic within the exotic framework. A battle scene in a forest is done with amazing beauty of motion and color. The work of Director Hiroshi Inagaki and his color consultants and photographer has been equalled only in a few Western films.

There is, as in the other Japanese imports, a strong moral motif running through this. Two poor young men join an army, hoping to become great samurais. After a defeat, they take up with a thieving widow and her daughter. One soldier goes on to a useless, easy life in the city in which it is implied he is constantly cuckolded by the widow, whom he has married. The other, although he becomes an outlaw, takes the stern path of ideals. His bloody career is halted by the eloquence of a priest, who persuades him to renounce hate and even his lady love to use his talents for the good of humanity—with again, as in "Ugetsu," an implied rebuke to Japan for her warlike ways in an obvious parallel.

Toshiro Mifune, the bandit in "Rashomon," and Kaoru Yachigusa, a doll-like little beauty, head a good cast. William Holden does a narration in English which clarifies things quite a bit.

Medieval Satire

In "THE COURT JESTER," at the FOX, Danny Kaye has again turned out a first-rate comedy, a satire on the "Ivanhoe"-Robin Hood type of when-knights-were-hold spectacle. It fully utilizes Danny's genius as a mime and entertainer mouthing the clever, rippling alliterations of his wife, lyricist Sylvia Fine, in some songs in which Sammy Cahn did the music—one of them "The Mal-adjusted Jester," is some of the best material Kaye ever had. In this Danny is a member of a band of outlaws who worms his way into the court of the tyrant king by posing as a court jester. From there on everything lampoons, with some finesse, the usual swashbuckling plot. I think you'll find it delightful, and consistently amusing. Glynis Johns, Basil Rathbone, Angela Lansbury, Cecil Parker, and Mildred Natwick are among those serving as foils for the adroit Mr. Kaye's talents.

How to Make Marriage Work

Happy Private Life in Public Mansion

Wife Sees to It That Mayor Wagner of New York Is Comfortably 'Home' When He Enters Door

By May Mann

This is the last of a series of articles on how to be happily married, based on interviews with well known American couples whose marriages have been successful.

TO be the wife of the Mayor of the biggest city in the world is a challenge. To fulfill the needs of her family and to contribute to the daily civic demands imposed on her time must require a deep sense of values.

Susan Wagner finds herself in that position today as the wife of Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City. It is her job to employ her time and talents, not only to her husband and children, but toward the important needs of his job. Surely Susan Wagner has to pause at the threshold of Gracie Mansion many times and consider her line of duty: that of the woman to the man she married. That of the mother to their children. And that of the wife of an important public official. She must ponder his growing responsibilities toward a city of 8,000,000 people and must be aware of the dignity of his position.

When I arrived at Gracie Mansion, official home of the mayor, a pair of roller skates at the entrance door on the long sweep of veranda of the white frame house and the sound of boisterous laughter inside indicated a happy informality of family living. Inside is a tranquility and hominess that is entirely unexpected in public domains politically leased by the term.

"Some people think it is a big place," Susan Wagner said. "Actually just the rooms are big. And rather nice, don't you think?"

She wore a charcoal gray wool suit with a fresh white blouse and black leather pumps. Her blonde hair was done in a long, soft underroll.

"There isn't too much you can do with a house that isn't yours," she said. "But we have to have a real home. And I like it to be attractive. My husband is 'home' when he walks through that front door."

"Two years ago when Wag was elected I asked myself a big question. What kind of a home life and what kind of privacy can a woman develop in a public mansion, especially one that has been furnished long before her entrance? Also, one which is provided for by a strict city budget for maintenance and upkeep?"

"There were some things I was able to do with a little imagination. The walls in this room were very dark green and the carpets were dark green. I lightened the walls to cream and beige and we had the carpet bleached to beige. I took the Venetian blinds out to let the light and the view in. It is more attractive, don't you think?"

THE sun was streaming through the big windows which looked out on the rolling spread of lawns, shrubs and beautiful tall trees surrounded by a high black iron fence. A receipt for the purchase of the property in 1797 for $2500 was framed by Mrs. Wagner and hangs on the wall.

Plants and bowls of flowers, pieces of crystal and objects of art with occasional family pictures add considerably to the family atmosphere. It reflects throughout the house. Mrs. Wagner introduced other minor changes which contributed to charm and hospitality.

The big iron plumbing and lighting pipes through floor to ceiling had been inexpensively covered with tall columns of plasterboard. The old elevator entrance hall, that looked "hostile" had been relegated to the basement and forgotten. A guest closet had taken its place. On the second floor a large bookcase covers its memory.

All the rooms had been introduced to fresh new light tones of color to create beauty from drabness. And to reflect the touch of a woman who is interested in homemaking.

"One gets so many ideas in the newspapers and magazines," she said. "It is doubly interesting to make something, to create what you hope would be a decorator's touch—with a little effort of your own."

Pictures of the Mayor and his wife and their two sons, Bobbie, 12, and Duncan, 9, in color, taken during a Miami vacation, and several others lend intimacy to the house. A large oil of New York City's First Lady in a blue party gown hangs over the mantel of the larger, more formal drawing room. Art treasures from the Metropolitan Museum augment the feeling of home with the restrained elegance associated with such a residence.

THE Mayor's pipe, radio, reading lamp and chair by the fireplace of the upstairs sitting room were inviting. They must be to a man seeking refuge at home and away from cares. Plaques, pictures of notable friends and others are placed on the wall of this room. One, inscribed: "Mrs. Robert F. Wagner by Edgewood Child Care Center on Behalf of Her Unfailing Efforts on Behalf of the Children of New York City," was yet to be placed.

Their bedroom features an oversized double bed. The boy has his own room.

"We have no guest room," explained Mrs. Wagner. "The maids' quarters are all down stairs. I wouldn't want to leave the boys asleep upstairs alone when we go out in the evening, so I gave the guest room to the maid."

Mrs. Wagner is seemingly a First Lady who believes that a family should live within its means. It is evident in her home life.

The guests of state who come here often leave gifts," Mrs. Wagner said. "Some like a beautiful silver frame or vase, we use as we would in our own home. The elephant's tusks, tiger skin, sword and spears and like that, I loan to the Metropolitan Museum. I couldn't think where to put them."

"There are numerous civic meetings and teas held here. I just make one little request, that no one ask to raise funds here by charging admission. You see, I explain we feel it really is a home."

"After these affairs, there are always left-overs. Straightening the house after a recent party I found a set of false teeth on the library table. So far no one has called to claim them."

The Mayor's clothes are kept in order.

"He just has to reach. But I always choose his ties," she smiled. "He prefers my choice. Wag is a little color blind. As for my clothes—" she laughed a little. "Recently a lady said to me, 'Why, Mrs. Wagner, I saw you in that hat three weeks ago.' I told her, 'I am quite sure you'll see me in it again and again, unless we mortgage the mansion.'"

Mrs. Wagner, who before her marriage worked in a dress shop in Greenwich, Conn., fortunately is an able exponent of what a first lady should wear. But there is no budget for her clothes attached to the Mayor's salary.

Any more than there is for her time, or her efforts. "A wife comes along as part of the deal," she observed.

"I believe the important role any wife plays in her husband's life is to go along with whatever he is doing—and do it with ease. Most public career men's lives are complicated and demanding. I believe it should be the duty of his wife not to make it more so—but to lessen the strain and provide more leisure time for him. If this means not seeing that certain play or motion picture, or going to Cousin Agnes' birthday dinner—when he has already exhausted his energies in the day's business—then that is it."

"I believe a wife must have a certain amount of vision. Vision to enable her to live from day to day and meet the demands as they come, as always call the Mayor's office to find out what my day is going to be. I never plan ahead without first reassuring myself and any one involved that it might be subject to change according to Wag's schedule, which is always subject to change."

As the daughter of a lawyer, who declared when she was asked to model, "I don't want my daughter's pictures in the paper. I'll pay her the fee so she won't."

Mrs. Wagner admits she is neither elated nor harassed. "I just go along with it. I only make one stipulation. I don't make speeches. Just appearances. If you don't know the facts, you might embarrass your husband. I feel that women who are qualified should make speeches. I only say two words, 'Thank you.'"

SUSAN WAGNER's life clearly evolves entirely around her husband. "I stay out of his business—except when I am requested. I feel that when he comes home and steps through that door, he is looking for relaxation. All day long he has been hammered at by problems and people and other people's problems. He wants to get away from it. I feel that he just likes the idea that I'm always around—here at home. That I'll be here when he comes home."

"I met Wag about four or five years before we were married. He was going to law school at Yale and was a friend of one of my brothers." She comes from a family of 10. "We were married 14 years on this last Valentine's Day," she said. "Last year Wag gave me pearl and diamond earrings, this year a big chair that I particularly admired and wanted for our own country place on Long Island."

"Actually, he never has time to do shopping. A very dear woman friend always knows just what I want. I believe it certainly doesn't contribute to any man's happiness and peace of mind to be met by a reproachful wife who cries, 'You forgot our anniversary.' I see to it that my husband is never put to such an annoyance."

"Our family life, I believe, is a good, average one. Our first baby was born when Wag was overseas in the war. He was almost two years of age before he ever saw him. I was warned that men should take a responsibility with babies—if they were to become interested fathers. The second child was born at Doctors' Hospital here and Wag was right there, for the baby arrived almost before we did. The children have breakfast early, and their father talks with them about school and their interests. At night when he is late for dinner, and the children's is always at 6, he will join them and watch television with them until their bedtime."

Two bicycles parked at the back door, a fishing rod hanging over the stairs with a basket to reel up the mail were evidence of boys in the house. Four dogs, a five-month-old Chihuahua, Charlie; Trey, a nine-year-old Spaniel; a Yorkshire, Winnie, and a Terrier given to the family one election night and named Mayor, are the family pets. "My husband says when any one calls 'Mayor' here, he never knows if they mean him or the dog."

"We have never had a quarrel. That may sound strange. It is a waste of time and energy, we believe, so why engage in unpleasantness when a little effort can dismiss or circumvent it? Bobbie overheard some people quarreling and he couldn't understand it. He had never heard that at home. Wag is an affectionate man, of German-Irish extraction. I am Scotch-English."

Does she dream of a tomorrow with even broader horizons, politically speaking? "I never dream. I just go to sleep," she replied.

Now the best material to use for patching is a prepared patching stucco that is sold in a package and which you mix with water before applying. These prepared patching materials come in several different colors and you want to select the color that best matches the color of the stucco on your walls.

If you can't get these prepared materials, use a mortar made with one part Portland cement and three parts sand. Mix the cement and sand together and then add enough water to get a putty like mixture. Force the patching material into the crack and finish off the outside surface to match the finish on the rest of the stucco.

If you live in a stucco home you are probably aware that stucco is pretty tough stuff. It's not only tough but it's not very elastic. When there is a movement of the house frame under the stucco coating, the stucco can't give and if there is enough movement, the stucco will crack or pull away from door and window frames.

The main danger of cracks and open seams in a stucco house is it will allow water to get in and cause damage to the house woodwork. You often find small hair line cracks in stucco and these usually are only in the top or finish stucco coat. They aren't anything to worry about and can usually be filled up with paint when the stucco is painted.

PARTICULARLY when a player has passed originally, it is wise to make hair-trigger penalty doubles, even at the lowest levels. Observe this case:

West's heart strength was not up to the usual standard for a penalty double at such a low level but, nevertheless, his action in this case was sound. He had passed originally, hence he knew that East could not look to him for a great number of tricks, and if East did not like the double, he would take it out.

Actually, of course, East had an excellent hand, including hearts, and so he was extremely fond of the double. Even if game was in the hand for his own side, which seemed doubtful in view of West's original pass, the chances were that it would be far more profitable to set the vulnerable opponents; and if a part-score was the East-West offensive maximum, then any defeat of one heart would be quite acceptable.

West opened the diamond jack, and declarer, for reasons known only to himself, ducked in dummy. West led his second diamond and South ruffed East's king with the deuce of trumps. A club was now led toward the queen-jack; West ducked and East won with the ace. East returned a low spade. West won, cashed the club king, and then led a third club. East ruffed in with the queen, and South had the unpleasant choice of conceding the trick, or making the worthless discard of a spade, or of overruffing with the ace. He elected to overruff and lead a spade.

East won and laid down the diamond ace. Declarer ruffed with the eight of hearts and West discarded his last spade.

On the following spade lead by South, West ruffed with the six of hearts and returned his last club. East ruffed this with the heart seven, and declarer made his fourth and last trick when he overruffed with the jack. Down 600.

Yachting, Fishing Trips Abroad for St. Louisans

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

A TRIP to Monte Carlo and a cruise on the Mediterranean are in store for Mrs. Allen T. West of the Park Plaza Hotel. Mrs. West will fly to Monte Carlo April 9 to visit her daughter, Mrs. William Hale Harkness of New York, who has been abroad almost a year. Mrs. Harkness has chartered a yacht, a British ship named the Virginia, on which she, her mother and a friend of Mrs. West's from New York will cruise.

Mrs. Harkness, the former Miss Betty West, is studying music composition for the piano. She spent last summer in Fontainebleau and this winter at Gstaad, Switzerland. Her three children are in school in Switzerland. Mrs. West will be away six weeks.

A fishing excursion in the Bahamas drew four St. Louisans to Nassau the first part of March. Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shepley, 1005 South McKnight road, Ladue, and Mr. Shepley's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Niedringhaus, 5 Southmoor, Clayton. Flying to Nassau, where they spent two days, they chartered a fishing boat, with a captain and steward, and for two weeks cruised among the Eleuthera and Exuma Islands. Deep-sea fishing enthusiasts, the Shepleys have made similar excursions in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, but this was their first expedition to the West Indies. The foursome returned to St. Louis last weekend.

The Nieuw Amsterdam sailed yesterday for Europe from New York with two St. Louis passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Barksdale of Dry Ridge road, St. Louis county. The Barksdales left St. Louis Monday and plan to spend the next two months on the continent and touring England. Their European travels will include Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland and Germany, where they will meet their son, Clarence Barksdale, who is living in Berlin while on Army assignment. The younger Mr. Barksdale, who has been in Germany for the last year and will remain a year longer, will journey through part of Europe with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Barksdale will return home after the first of June on the Mauretania.

The Barksdales' younger son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Barksdale, with their two young sons, Timothy and Henry Jr., will move this week to their newly-built modern home, located on Dry Ridge road, near his parents' home off Topping road. They formerly lived at 1346 McCutcheon road, Brentwood.

St. Louisans on Spring Trips

THREE St. Louis doctors and their wives will be headed for California in April, the men to attend medical meetings in addition to visiting points of interest. Dr. and Mrs. Leslie D. Cassidy, 7410 Oxford drive, Clayton, will depart April 5 to see San Francisco before joining the rest of the party. Dr. and Mrs. Sim F. Beam, 52 Middlesex drive, York Woods, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert W. Kelley, 5371 Waterman avenue, plan to leave April 9. The medical meetings will be held in Pebble Beach and Los Angeles. The St. Louisans will be away two weeks.

Among the school girls away for a spring holiday are Miss Elizabeth Prince (Beth) Prewitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lansing Prewitt, 6214 Washington avenue, and Miss Stephanie Anne Wotka, daughter of Thomas H. Wotka, 9015 McKnight Woods, both students at John Burroughs School. Miss Prewitt was invited to spend 10 days in New York by her classmate. They are guests of Miss Wotka's grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Wotka Sr., attending the theater and seeing the United Nations buildings. The girls will fly home Sunday.

Christening Party on Easter Sunday

MR. AND MRS. DUDLEY ACTON BRAGDON, 1400 Spoele road, Frontenac, will give a family dinner party Easter Sunday to celebrate the christening that morning at Ladue Chapel of their first grandchild. The baby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Strauch Meyer, has been named Margaret Butler for her mother, the former Miss Margaret (Peggy) Bragdon, and her great-grandmother, Mrs. George Butler, who lives in East Haddam, Conn., and is unable to make the trip to St. Louis. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Meyer, her godparents are her aunt, Mrs. William W. Sant II (Caroline Meyer); Mrs. John J. O'Fallon Jr., and her uncle, Dudley Bragdon III. The Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell will baptize her.

Dudley and his brother, Clifford Richardson Bragdon, are expected home tonight from Sarasota, Fla., where they have been spending their spring holidays from Washington University and Horton Watkins High School, respectively. Saturday they attended the Sebring Sports Car Races.

Changes in Clarkson-Hill Wedding Plans

LAST-MINUTE changes have been made in the wedding party and plans of Miss Jane Maury Hill and John Turner Clarkson Jr., who will be married Tuesday afternoon at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Ladue. M. Dozier Gardner, who was to have been best man, has been assigned to Army duty in the Far East from his present post in Georgia and his leave has been canceled. John S. Childress will serve as best man instead.

Miss Hill, youngest daughter of the Maury Hills, 4 Forest Ridge, Clayton, has added her two nieces as flower girls to her list of attendants, Lela Shepley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ethan A. H. Shepley Jr. (Virginia Hill) and Becky Burgwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Burgwin III (Lela Hill) of Pittsburgh, Pa. The Burgwins and Becky will arrive tonight. Mrs. Shepley, who was to have served as a bridesmaid, however, will not take part in the wedding. Other out-of-town members of the wedding party will arrive this weekend, Miss Patricia Phillip and Bruce K. Baker from New York, Miss Jean Russell from Chicago and George Stewart from Pittsburgh.

A buffet supper Sunday, scheduled at the Shepleys' home, 1 Wydown terrace, is to be given instead at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Turner Clarkson, 10 Greenbriar, Ladue. Hosts and hostesses will be the Clarksons, Mr. and Mrs. Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Clement W. Pollock.

Miss Catherine Kingsland Peper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Baird Peper, 6334 McPherson avenue, University City, has arrived by plane to spend her Easter vacation from Manhattanville College, Purchase, N.Y. Accompanying Miss Peper was a classmate, Miss Marieluisa Meoni, of Milan, Italy. Miss Meoni is spending her junior year at Manhattanville.

My Day

Dinner Plans Of St. Louis AAUN Group

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK

I AM glad to find that branches of the American Association for the United Nations are doing something active in the spring of this year. United Nations week, preceding United Nations day, has become the climax for all educational activities of the association. But we on the board feel that it is a good idea to make an effort to draw people's attention to the U.N. and its activities in the spring, as well.

This year our Greater St. Louis branch will have its spring dinner Wednesday at the Congress Hotel. Special guest, who will address the dinner, is Mrs. Oswald B. Lord. She is the United States representative on the Human Rights Commission and has been an alternate delegate to the U.N. General Assembly since 1953.

MRS. LORD has just returned from a two-month trip in Southeast Asia, France and Spain, and she must have many interesting impressions, gathered from her observations of people and situations on this trip to impart to her audience.

Mrs. Lord will be introduced by Dr. Franc L. McCluer, president of Lindenwood College. We at the headquarters of the A.A.U.N. are hoping that this branch's meeting will be a great success.

I THINK this is a good time to mention the information which has come to me from the Christian Rural Overseas program, known as CROP.

This organization receives gifts for the world's needy and says that, because of the land-slides and extensive flooding in the wake of Europe's severe winter in 200 years, it expects larger shipments of food than were planned will be sent to Europe this spring.

The Church World Service ships and administers these supplies in the field, just as it administers the distribution of surplus food supplies released by the United States Government and draws on CROP contributions to bear part of the handling costs for these supplies.

This service also handles medical and gifts of clothing for people made homeless from landslides along the Danube.

WINTER WHEAT was almost wiped out in Italy, Germany and France. Italy also suffered extensive damage to her olive oil industry which, it is feared, will take 15 years to rehabilitate.

Originally CROP supplies were intended to go to school lunch programs, orphanages and refugees. But now these supplies have been diverted to the greater needs arising from Europe's severe winter.

Fairy products and rice in the amount of 4,500,000 pounds have been sent to Greece. No complete report has yet been received from Turkey, but 48,000 pounds of food are on their way to that nation. And these organizations fear that more needs will arise as spring advances.

Martha Carr's

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha:

UNLIKE most teen-agers I have no love problem but I have another one. I think it is a crying shame the way the adults talk about us. All right, so we're not angels and I don't say we even come close, but I do say if the adults would give us half a chance maybe we could become better. A man of 30 robs a store or kills a person and the public doesn't think anything of it. Just hear about a boy of 16 robbing a store or stealing a car and the whole city goes into an uproar. Parents, where did these kids first develop the desire to rob and kill? I'll tell you. Their elders do it, why shouldn't they?

I agree that adults should set a better example for their children and many of us fall far short. But I don't agree that "the public doesn't think anything of" an adult's crime. Believe me, they are just as sickening and disgusting and terrifying as those committed by younger people. And when you are an adult, you will probably look back on your childhood and feel that tomorrow's "younger generation" is really wild compared to the way it was back in your day. It's always heartbreaking to see a boy or girl, with a chance to create a good and rich and full life, take the other road. The opportunities for good are just as plentiful as the opportunities for bad. Everyone does have a chance in this world. It's up to him to make the most of what is given him.

Dear Martha:

I AM 15. I have been trying to get a date with a very nice boy but I just don't seem to get anywhere. He is pleasant to me but that is as far as it goes. I always try to be cheerful with him and look my best but I'm always at a loss for words when he's around. Every time I come home from school or on Friday nights when I'm not out on a date my mother starts yelling at me and telling me I'll never get anybody because I'm too dumb and I don't know how to get a boy to ask me out. She tries to dress me nicely but I don't seem to have what it takes to get a boy friend. Please help me. I really am desperate and do need some help. I've tried to turn to my mother but all she seems to care about is whether I have a date. This is really getting to be a problem.

CINDY.

Sometimes, Cindy, when we're hurt and resentful, it's easy to exaggerate, so perhaps your mother isn't as unreasonable as you feel she is. However (and I hope mothers read this), I think they make a very serious mistake when they demand that their daughters date more than they do, or worry for fear they won't find an eligible suitor before they're out of their teens. So don't let anyone hurt you by saying you are "too dumb" and don't know how to get a boy to take you out. Determine to be patient and not worry as much as your mother apparently does. Keep on being attractive and friendly and well-groomed, Cindy, and you'll have your share of dates. Just don't rush things too much. As for this special boy, you might invite him to your home or plan a party for several couples. If he isn't going steady, there's no reason not to show him you are interested in him.

The Breaking Point

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

EVERY now and then you come to the breaking point and you just must relax. If you do you will certainly last longer and look younger. Women are so apt to push themselves on and on, and we all know that feeling—"I am so exhausted I could cry." Well, don't allow yourself to reach that breaking point—relax. After 40 you need time to collect your thoughts and you need a calmer outlook on things in general. Husbands and families often get fed up with a jittery, nervous, wife and mother, and in business there is just no place for such a woman. Well-poised career women recognize this and they all seek ways and means to relax because they must never show a case of nerves to their public.

One clever woman of my acquaintance, who does a terrific job in a busy industry, tells me that she takes time out at the end of a day. She must take a bus to her suburban home but she says, "I force myself to get there in time to get a seat. I am first at the door. Then I close my eyes and say to myself, 'Relax' and I do. I never carry on a conversation or read. I try to drift away and just go limp. I always keep my eyes closed because I don't want to recognize any of my friends who want to talk." When she arrives home she does feel calmer and some of the tenseness of her day is gone.

Another mature business woman tells me that when she reaches the exhausted stage she telephones her family and asks them to meet her at a nearby restaurant for dinner. "Because," she says quite frankly, "when I feel exhausted I know that I would collapse in tears and temper if I went home to cook dinner and be pleasant about it." So, what do you do for relaxation?

Reducer's Problem

By Josephine Lowman

"I AM 16 years old," writes a reader. "I have lost 13 pounds and I did it gradually. Therefore, I cannot understand why many of my friends say that reducing has ruined my looks. I ate a well balanced diet and frankly I think I look 100 per cent better. But I wonder, since my girl friends say that I look awful. Am I kidding myself? Believe me, I did this reducing scientifically, with your help and the help of my doctor. I am so discouraged!" Don't be discouraged by the frailties of human nature. If I were a betting woman I would bet you at least a lollipop or two, that the friends who say that you look so awful after losing excess poundage are either overweight themselves, or not as pretty or popular as you are! I know this sounds cynical but it really isn't. It is realistic,

The Easter Seal Children

They Symbolize Goal of Aiding Crippled Youngsters

By Mary Kimbrough

GREG BIGGS and Debbie Jones are all set for a happy Easter, but they're too young yet to realize the whirlwind of work going on in town that will insure even happier Easters for youngsters like Greg and Debbie who haven't yet learned to walk as other children do.

Greg, 4 years old, and Debbie, 3, were selected by the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children as Easter Seal children, lending their photographs and their time for appearances on radio and television to spur the annual Easter Seal campaign for crippled children.

Up in the Railway Exchange Building, a large office suite is bustling and noisy. It's the Easter Seal campaign headquarters where plans for promoting the sale have been conceived and carried out. It was here that the nationally televised parade through downtown St. Louis last Saturday was organized, and teen-agers were recruited to sell paper and plastic lilies as an auxiliary money-raising project.

Greg and Debbie don't know it, but this is for them. The more Easter Seals, the more paper and plastic lilies which are sold, the greater their chances to walk some day as other children do.

There's a big difference in their physical handicap, and they represent the wide scope of the patient load at the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children.

Debbie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones, 6137 Washington boulevard suffers a comparatively minor impairment, a combination of knock knees and pigeon toes which require corrective shoes but no surgery. She is typical of those many children who need therapy and exercise for slight deformities.

Greg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Biggs, 4927 Columbia avenue, has much further to go in his struggle to learn to walk. Greg is only one of many youngsters being treated for cerebral palsy at the Seal Rehabilitation Center, which pioneered this medical field. His goal for 1956 is to walk on crutches.

But even while he is learning to place one foot ahead of another—a physical motion taken for granted by most children

DEBBIE JONES AND GREG BIGGS, WHO WERE SELECTED BY THE ST. LOUIS SOCIETY FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN AS EASTER SEAL CHILDREN. IT IS TO HELP THEM, AND CHILDREN LIKE THEM, THAT THE ANNUAL CAMPAIGN IS CONDUCTED.

his age—he must fight hard to develop inadequate muscles. His treatment began with daily exercises to strengthen these muscles and although when he first came to the center, he was unable to creep or to sit in a chair without support, he has now learned to balance himself on his knees, to sit up, stand for a few moments and even to talk a little.

He uses parallel bars to master the art of putting one hand and the opposite foot ahead at the same time and to help him overcome the fear of falling. From this, he will graduate to pushing a weighted cart and learning the efficient use of crutches.

It's to help provide corrective shoes for Debbie and the slow, sometimes agonizing, but always hopeful, treatment for Greg, that the Easter Seal sale is being conducted. A goal of $200,000 has been established by Charles E. Claggett, president of Gardner Advertising Co. and chairman of the 1956 campaign.

"This is the only national organization offering rehabilitation care to children suffering from all types of crippling conditions whether caused by accident or diseases," said Claggett. "Its rehabilitation program does not duplicate the services of private physicians, hospitals, clinics and other agencies."

Debbie and Greg are only two of the hundreds of children who visit the Rehabilitation Center and nursery school at 4370 Olive street. There they learn not only how to get around more easily, using their handicapped limbs, but they learn also how to get along with other children.

Each has a physical handicap, minor or serious, which must be met. Each has a specific goal. And for most of them, that goal is a simple one. Just to learn to walk.

TV Creates Date Problem For Teener

By Elinor Williams

WHEN a girl's date comes to see her, who watches TV—the teeners or her parents? It's a question that causes a strain on "family relations." A 14-year-old girl writes:

"When a boy comes to a girl's house, should her parents leave the room? My mother says they don't have anything else to do except stay in the living room and watch TV. But my boy friend and I are shy and can't talk when they're in the room all the time."

ANSWER—It'll take co-operation between you and your parents to solve this one. Get together and talk it over. Make a definite arrangement for TV on date nights.

First, you and your date and your parents do have other things to do, if you think and plan.

Second, you and your date should have some privacy, though you must also learn to be at ease with older people, too.

Third, your parents shouldn't have to miss their favorite shows.

SO WORK OUT an arrangement perhaps like this:

1. Invite your date for the night your parents' favorite shows aren't on. While you and your date watch TV, they can read a newspaper, magazine or book, play cards, do chores, work at their hobby, have a budget session, write letters or whatever they need or like to do—in the kitchen or bedroom. If there's a program they hate to miss, even on this night, they could watch it with you, then leave you alone at least part of the time.

2. Invite your date on nights when you have no special show to see on TV. While your parents watch television, you two can play cards or games or pop corn in the kitchen. None of you needs to miss or monopolize the TV entirely—and you all can find other things to do, some of the time. What did you do before TV?

shrimp. Similarly I'm dreadfully dubious concerning mass reactions to sukiyaki or sauerkraut.

Thinking back over recent successful dinner parties we've attended, it is even more obvious that we associate with other hopelessly unimaginative and bourgeois people. Pork chops (see, they were good), brownies and ice cream for dessert. Broiled steaks, roast beef, mashed potatoes, apple pie, fried chicken, lemon layer cake. Worst of all, everyone seemed to love those dinners.

Even not considering the guests, the hostess has an insurmountable hurdle, namely the host, which she must overcome in planning a novel dinner menu. I can imagine con-

Who's in the Mood for a Taste Thrill?

By Clarissa Start

SOMETIMES I think there must be something wrong with the parties I give. Not that the guests ever show any indication of it. They seem to eat and drink with appropriate appreciation, laugh, converse and occasionally fall asleep, the latter considered a sterling tribute to a good meal in our set.

The trouble I never seem to have any of these unusual things, the things you read about in the magazines. Take, for instance, the item I came across while relaxing under a hairdryer and reading one of the more chichi magazines the other evening.

"The food at every party, cocktail or otherwise," read the item, "should have an element of surprise, like stuffed vine leaves from Turkey. There is nothing like a taste thrill to set tongues buzzing."

SEE, I ASKED myself, how long has it been since you served stuffed vine leaves from Turkey at a cocktail party? As a matter of fact, how long has it been since you set tongues buzzing at a new taste thrill? The more I perused the magazine, the more discouraged I became. It was an issue devoted to unusual party food, designed to take the humdrum element out of your dinner menus. It made devastating remarks about such plebian party fare as the buffet supper with a roast turkey at one end of the table and a baked ham at the other. It suggested, instead, that your main course be something like the pictured two fish, laid end to end and surrounded by tomatoes. Or a sukiyaki supper. Or a one dish sauerkraut meal. Or serve mussels. Or devote a whole meal to snails—"a growing coterie is devoted to them."

UNHAPPILY I PUT the magazine aside. The trouble is, you see, I'm a terrible snail. Unless a group of my friends approached me and said, "Are you aware that a growing coterie of us are devoted to snails?" I'd be scared to death to serve them. I'm even scared to serve shrimp. Except as an appetizer with a tray of cheese and crackers for those who don't eat

Want to be "shown"? Independent laboratory reports show that there is no finer, higher octane gasoline in St. Louis than Cresyl 110. If you can sell "the best" at "lower" prices, EVERYBODY profits...you, with quality plus savings and WE, with more customers (and, we'll have to admit, more profits). Fair enough?

TORNADO lasts hardly half an hour on the average, but sometimes it is active for two or three hours. A hurricane, on the other hand, has an average life of about nine days. Some hurricanes exist for 12 days or a bit more.

Hurricanes are born over the ocean, but tornadoes are born in inland places. Most hurricanes of the Atlantic ocean start in the area of the West Indies. Later they may sweep across eastern parts of North America. Eastern provinces of Canada, as well as eastern American states, have suffered heavy damage from certain hurricanes.

Q. Do hurricanes take place over the Pacific Ocean?
A. Storms of the same nature blow across the China sea. In that area people usually call them typhoons.

Q. Where did the word "hurricane" come from?
A. Some scholars believe it came from Huracan, the name of an evil spirit of the wind. On the other hand, it may have arisen from Carib Indian words meaning "big, bad wind."

Q. How fast do hurricanes move?
A. There are two main kinds of motion. One is the forward motion which may range anywhere from two miles an hour to 30 miles. If warned in time, a motorist can drive away from a hurricane easily enough. The other chief motion is of a whirling type. Going around and around, the air gains a speed of 75 miles or more. Last
